

U.S. Goal: Men, A-Arms in Space

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

John Glenn's successful triple orbit of the globe is likely to lead to a sharp intensification of the United States space effort.

American space men needed a victory to lift their spirits and they got it. But as rocket designer Wernher von Braun commented: "This is just the beginning."

Russia still has the lead in rocket propulsion and accomplishment although the Glenn shot has narrowed the gap.

President Kennedy has increased the Soviet lead but he is determined to close the gap not so much because of the Russian-American race for the moon as for the military potential space offers to the power that masters it first.

Top American military leaders have informed The Canadian Press that the ability to operate in space with men and nuclear weapons is a crucial top-priority need. Every effort must be bent in that direction. But the U.S. military effort in space can only go as fast as its scientist can take it. The American military fear is that Russia may get there first and "use her domination of space to blackmail the West with a threat of nuclear extermination."

Now Glenn has demonstrated that the U.S. has gathered the technical ability and equipment to orbit the earth successfully. He also has demonstrated, in a small, preliminary way, that man can think, live and operate in space for short periods. Yet to be demonstrated—either by Russia or the U.S.—is whether man can operate in space for long periods, say, for weeks or months.

Russia successfully orbited the earth with the Gherman Titov shot of 17 revolutions last May. The U.S. likely will attempt a similar experiment later this year, perhaps within a few months. After that, the two countries are likely to move in the same direction—the creation of larger two-man capsules to allow one man to sleep while the other works in round-the-clock space operations lasting a week or two.

American plans for such a capsule—known as Gemini—are already on the drafting boards and a Canadian engineer, Jim Chamberlin of Kamloops, B.C., and Toronto, has been placed in charge of the entire operation. Chamberlin has hopes of making his first launchings in 1964. But so enthused is the U.S. government with the Glenn shot that every effort will be made to push up launching dates for the entire program.

Jaunty Glenn Proves 'Life Begins at 40'

GRAND TURK, Bahamas (UPI)—Lt. Col. John Glenn stepped jauntily back on dry land last night after his three-orbit trip around the earth and said, "Boy, what an exciting day!"

"It was a long day—and a very interesting one, too," he added.

The 40-year-old astronaut landed on this tiny British island where an air force tracking station is located.

Glenn, dressed in blue coveralls and wearing sneakers, was in the co-pilot's seat of a twin-engine navy patrol plane which brought him here from the carrier Randolph where he had been taken after being picked up at sea by a destroyer.

APPLAUDED

A crowd of about 100 greeted Glenn at the landing strip and applauded him as he stepped into a waiting truck and rode off to a hospital built especially for "de-briefing" of Project Mercury astronauts.

Back-up astronaut M. Scott Carpenter was one of the first to grab Glenn as he stepped out of the plane.

"John, you did a real wonderful job," Carpenter said, slapping Glenn on the back.

"Thanks a lot," Glenn replied. "I couldn't feel better."

Also on hand to greet him was fellow astronaut Donald (Deke) Slayton, who is scheduled to fly the next Mercury orbital mission, perhaps in two months. Rep. Victor Rousso (D-N.Y.), also was here as a representative of the House space committee.

"Well done—you have proved that life begins at 40," quipped Rousso.

WELCOME SIGN

At the small base hospital Glenn was welcomed by another small group of tracking station workers. They had hoisted a "Welcome Col. John Glenn" sign on the outside of the hospital.

"Howdy," Glenn waved to the group at the hospital before he went in.

Col. John (Shorty) Powers, a station spokesman, described Glenn after a brief visit with him in the hospital as "hale, healthy, hearty and happy."

FLIGHT REVIEWED

Glenn began reviewing his flight with his fellow astronauts, telling them about his experience in re-entering the atmosphere at the end of the three-orbit ride.

He told of seeing flaming pieces of the space capsule's retro-rockets package flying past the window of his capsule.

'I Couldn't Feel Better'

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Astronaut John Glenn whirled three times around the earth yesterday in his tiny Mercury capsule, landed smack in an Atlantic Ocean bulge, and reported to a joyous nation "I couldn't feel better."

After spending four hours and 35 minutes whirling above oceans and continents, he came down in the prime recovery zone 800 miles southeast of here and was picked up with an old fashion block and tackle by the delighted crew of the navy destroyer No. 6.

Within three hours he was on board the big carrier Randolph, eating a dinner of filet mignon, and then was flown back to land at Grand Turk Island in the Bahamas.

The U.S. nation, from President Kennedy to the people in New York who showered their streets with ticker tape, shared in the delight of Glenn's success after so many frustrating postponements. In addition it was a singular triumph for the Project Mercury team of scientists, engineers and astronauts, who started from scratch only three years ago and wound up with a near-perfect achievement.

'Just Wonderful'

"I feel fine. I feel just wonderful. I couldn't feel better," Glenn said last night. He will spend the next two days being "de-briefed," describing his experiences of spending nearly five weightless hours in the capsule, of the searing return to the earth's atmosphere, and of the sights he saw on his voyage.

Even as he began to relax after the trip, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration was getting ready for more orbital flights in the near future. Next on the list is air force Major Donald K. Slayton, who may go into orbit within the next two months, and who flew to Grand Turk to hear first hand from Glenn what to expect.

No Trace Of Stress

Smiling John Glenn shows no sign of emotional and physical stresses endured during 284 minutes of historic space flight as he records his reactions into microphones during debriefing and physical examination aboard pick-up destroyer USS No. 6 minutes after he and capsule were plucked from Atlantic "ball park." ## City Girl Flees From Molester

By ERITH SMITH

A 12-year-old Victoria girl last night escaped unharmed but badly frightened from a man who lured her to a remote spot and threatened to stab her if she cried out.

City police were combing the area during the night for a man answering the near-hysterical girl's description.

It tallied in large measure with that given by another 12-year-old girl who less than an hour earlier in another sector of the city refused similar blandishments to enter a stranger's car.

STOPPED HER

The attack victim was on her way home at about 8:30 p.m. from a meeting of a girls' organization when a car stopped her and the driver offered her 50 cents if she'd show him where a drug store was open.

Thinking she "should help," she got into the car and directed him to a store about six blocks away. There he gave her the money, went into the store, then came out and told her to get down on the car floor and he'd drive her home.

STOPPED BY FIELD

When the car stopped they were by a field of rocks. He took her from the car, walked her a short distance, took away her glasses, made her get down on the ground and threatened her verbally with a knife.

He unbuttoned her coat and dress, then returned to his car.

WENT TO HOUSE

As soon as he left, the girl got up and ran, going to the first house she came to and sobbing out her story. Police were called and their investigation turned up 55 cents in coins at the spot where the attack occurred.

GIRL REFUSED

The girl approached earlier was also offered 50 cents if she'd show the driver the way to a drug store. When she refused, he raised the offer to 75 cents and said his grandmother was very sick, that he was from Vancouver and didn't know his way around. She still refused, and went home.

Court-Martial Monday In U.S. Shelling Incident

Court-martial of Cmdr. Richard Lehr on charges arising out of the Chatham Bay, Wash., shelling incident last month is scheduled to open at HMCS Naden Monday.

The announcement by Rear-Admiral E. W. Finch-Noyes yesterday did not detail the charge or charges to be faced by the 40-year-old skipper of the destroyer-escort HMCS Skeena.

Under the normal procedure followed at court-martial, newsmen covering the trial will be handed copies of the charge when proceedings open on the first day.

Skeena was one of four Esquimaux-based warships carrying out gunnery exercises in Juan de Fuca Strait Jan. 26 when several anti-aircraft shell fragments rained down on the Olympic peninsula resort and logging community.

G. E. Mortimer's series on medical care, "Twentieth Century Challenge," appears today on Page 2, along with stories of royal consultation on health services hearings in Vancouver.

Skeena Seeking Sub?

The RCN Pacific Command destroyer-escort Skeena sailed from Esquimaux shortly after 4 p.m. yesterday for an undiscussed destination on what the navy termed "an operational mission." Unofficial reports said the ship commanded by Cmdr. R. H. Lehr was dispatched to check reports of a submarine sighted off the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Pay-to-Camp Fees Spread in B.C.

By ALIC MCKINMAN

A pay-to-camp fee will be charged in all major B.C. provincial parks this summer. Recreation Minister Ernie Westwood told the legislature yesterday.

He indicated the fee will be reduced from the $2-a-day charge made at four pilot parks last summer, and that the length of free stay will be increased beyond the two free days of last year.

He said charges will be made at all provincial parks which have an attendant, and on Vancouver Island this will mean that campers will have to pay at McDonald Park at Sidney, at Goldstream Park, Bamerton Park, Ivy Green Park at Ladysmith, Englishman River Falls Park, Little Qualicum Falls Park, Long Beach and Miracle Beach Park. "We are not interested in the money. What we want to do is to provide the encouragement and incentive for campers to move around and see all of British Columbia.

"We don't want them to settle down in one camp. If they want to move around they will be able to spend their entire holidays without paying anything," he said.

'Europa' Changing The World

A new major power is taking shape across the Atlantic—the European community. Its progress will affect the rest of the free world, touching the future of millions, changing the patterns of Western life.

The fashioning of the new "Europa" is described in detail in a comprehensive, thought-provoking series of seven articles beginning Thursday on the editorial page of The Daily Colonist.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

You can hear them talking everywhere about the man in space—in cafes, beer parlors, barber shops, buses.

Men who seldom have anything to say beyond the sports scores, women whose normal conversation is of grocery prices and the fables of husbands—they are all talking about John Glenn.

A lot of them talk in a special television way—in the rich, excited voices that people pick up unconsciously from the magic box. Has anyone else noticed this—the vast improvement in lunch-counter diction?

The effect is much sharpened by the spectacle of the John Glenn space flight—a drama of man against the universe in which all the people feel they are taking a part. It may be only an extra's part, and John Glenn is the featured player; but all the little people feel they are in the play anyway, and they talk to the waitress across the lunch counter in those rich, excited voices, just like the men with earphones, microphones, control panels and calculating machines they see on television.

Before Television

The United States had that feeling before television—the feeling that everything was part of a big movie, in which stirring things are certain to happen.

Television, and the flight into space, intensified the feeling. Canadians share the enthusiasm, too. Even though we may take a detached, chilly view of American-Russian rivalry, we can't help being engulfed in the great wave of

American Warmth

Linked with these qualities there is an American warmth and exuberance that shows itself particularly in such moments.

It was very much an American action to make heroes and heroines of the astronaut's wife, children and parents, and thrust microphones at them from all angles to record their breathless, confused utterances.

No small achievement in itself was the discovery of a new television talent in the person of John Glenn's father, who turned out to be a shrewd, kindly comedian in the Will Rogers vein—a man who appeared to have been waiting all his life for the cameras.

Thickening of Joint Caused by Arthritis Of Different Kinds

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes "thickening of a joint"? Does it usually accompany arthritis? And does it incapacitate a person? Is there a cure?—B.G.

A lot of things can cause "thickening of a joint," and in the broad sense, we can say that most of them are "arthritis" of one sort or another.

GOUTY ARTHRITIS

An injury, such as "baseball finger," can cause the thickening of a joint. So can prolonged pressure, as in "housemaid's knee," or "chauffeur's elbow," or "tennis elbow," which all are varied forms of bursitis. There can be "gouty arthritis," which can be overcome if we succeed in keeping the gout under control, and that is something that, with care, we do with considerable success these days.

POTENTIAL THREAT

Rheumatoid arthritis is an acute potential threat to our joints. It causes fairly rapid and severe thickening and stiffening of the joints, and

Some Escape Bedridden World

By G. E. MORTIMORE
Seventh of a Series

Two nurses half-dragged and half-carried old Mrs. Jones along the hospital corridor to the bathroom.

This was the only time she ever moved from her bed. For the rest of the day she remained still and grey-faced under the sheets.

She had suffered a stroke—meaning small blood vessels had clogged and shut off the flow of oxygen to part of the brain, killing a piece of brain tissue and causing nearby tissues to swell and pinch off nerve fibres.

The brain could no longer send its orders clearly to the body. As a result, Mrs. Jones was paralyzed down one side and part of another. The hospital was only keeping her warm while she waited for a bed in a nursing home, where she would remain, staring at the ceiling, for the rest of her life.

Soon at Home

This might have been her fate. It happens to many people. But Mrs. Jones was lucky. Instead of sending her to a warehouse for paralyzed people, the nurses helped her downstairs and loaded her into an ambulance for Gorge Road Hospital.

Two months later she was back home again—walking, talking, reading, cooking and maintaining an interest in the world.

Mrs. Jones's escape into the daylight from the half-world of the bedridden was the result of "activation" and "rehabilitation"—two long words which only mean teaching a patient to use her muscles again.

Lose Strength

In recent years doctors have learned it pays to get patients moving as soon as possible after an illness or injury. They made the same discovery much earlier about surgical operations.

"If you lie in bed too long, you lose strength and muscle power," I was told by a doctor specializing in rehabilitative medicine.

"A young person is more likely to rehabilitate himself automatically. Economic and social drives make him want to get back to the job."

Less Reserve

"But the older person has less reserve," I was told. "When he is hit by illness, he is already operating just above the line. There is much more reason to keep him functioning and get him back to normal as soon as possible."

"If older people are kept in active, they lose calcium from their skeletons; their bones get thin and are more liable to fracture. Bed rest is a toxic prescription for an older person."

The aim now is to get people moving as soon as possible. Pneumonia patients are encouraged to get up in a few days and walk to the bathroom, before they have lost all their strength.

Wiggle Toes

Heart patients may be encouraged to wiggle the fingers and toes, so the body will be accustomed to movement and there will be less strain on the heart when the patient begins to walk.

"In the case of strokes," the doctor said, "there are many harmful results from immobilization. Movement can often be restored—you never know how rapidly until you try it. When a patient has a stroke, the muscles are not actually paralyzed—just cut off from consciousness. The patient has 'forgotten' that part of his body. He may have forgotten how to move most of one side. He may be numb in parts, with part of his vision cut off."

Other Centres

"Because of the swelling of brain tissue and destruction of some tissue, the wires have been cut from beneath the cortex of the brain. Voluntary movement comes from the cortex; but below that, other centres can generate automatic movement."

"You have to make the patient once more aware that his own side exists. The best way to start is to put the patient on his feet."

Pressure on the soles of the feet may start a spinal reflex, an automatic thrusting movement of the leg which is part of the walking process. From automatic movements the patient may go on to voluntary movements.

Twentieth-Century Challenge

New Pathways

The swelling in the brain goes down; part of the brain is still out of action, but if damage is not too extensive, another part of the brain takes over, nerve impulses find new pathways and the patient can move about freely once more. Perhaps he gets back only partial use of his limbs; but whatever he gets back is a gain.

Not all doctors and nurses (rehabilitation experts say) have fully accepted "activation" methods. Some doctors and nurses are too kind to patients and look after them so well they make invalids of them for life.

There is still a place for "Tender Loving Care" in the Florence Nightingale tradition. Acutely ill patients need it.

But another heroine of medicine is coming into the public eye—the physiotherapist, who has the job of coaxing sick people to their feet. It takes a special kind of human being to do the work—part nurse, part schoolmarm and part gymnasium instructor.

The physiotherapist's job is just as important, in its way, as the nurse's. The two kinds of skilled people work together and learn from each other. The process of getting Mrs. Jones back on her feet began before the physiotherapists went to work on her. It began even before the patient entered hospital.

Chronic Care

It began with a decision by the B.C. government in 1960 to enter the field known as "chronic care"—a term which many doctors dislike, because it implies permanent disability.

In fact, many "chronic" cases can be improved. B.C. Hospital Insurance officials and the medical profession put their heads together in search of a solution to the problem of caring for the increasingly large numbers of disabled persons—many of them elderly.

The advice of the medical profession was simple: Start with the people who were most likely to benefit from help.

Best Chance

Committees of doctors were set up to choose the patients with the best chance of improving, and send them (if they were in Victoria) to Gorge Road Hospital. Gorge Road was brought under BCHIS so patients in the hospital could have their bills paid.

Gorge Road, once merely a home for the elderly bedridden—became Victoria's rehabilitation centre. A more elaborate program, already under way in G. F. Strong Rehabilitation Centre, Vancouver, was increased in scope; "activation wings" were installed in Vancouver General Hospital and several other hospitals; plans were made to have such wings in other hospitals throughout the province.

In these activation and rehabilitation wings, patients were encouraged to dress, wheel themselves about in wheelchairs, get to their feet as soon as possible and walk the corridors, clutching a hand rail.

Experience proved even the simple act of dressing could change a patient's outlook. In an acute hospital Mrs. Jones was likely to think of herself as a passive, childlike invalid, required to lie still under the sheets. In the rehabilitation hospital she rejoined the world of active people.

Healing had already started, in the mind. Now the physiotherapists and nurses had their part to play in teaching Mrs. Jones to live again.

Tomorrow: How they got Mrs. Jones to her feet—and saved the taxpayers' money.

Medical Research Urgent Or Experts 'Drained' Off

VANCOUVER (CP) — The royal commission on health services was told Tuesday it is "awfully urgent" that steps be taken to improve opportunities for medical research in Canada.

Dr. John F. McCreary, dean of medicine at the University of British Columbia, told the commission that unless something is done Canadian schools will be drained of researchers by institutions in the United States.

Dr. McCreary appeared with a delegation representing the British Columbia Medical Association, which presented the first formal brief as the royal commission opened five days of public hearings here.

He said there has been a "tremendous explosion" in the amount of money available for research in the United States, resulting in an expansion of facilities and greatly improved salaries for research workers.

AMERICANS LOOKING "This has produced far more research opportunities than there are qualified personnel to take advantage of them," said Dr. McCreary. "So they (the Americans) are looking around for researchers to accept positions. Canada is one place where they are looking."

"It is awfully urgent that we take some steps to equilibrate the situation in Canada."

FEELING IMPACT The dean said Canadian schools are just now feeling the impact of a boost to $425,000,000 from $250,000,000 made two years ago in funds available for research in the U.S. Since then, there had been a further big increase to $800,000,000.

In Canada, five federal agencies are providing about $10,000,000 a year, he said. Private sources were contributing a further amount totalling something less than half the federal grants.

NOT VERY MUCH The private sources included industry, but Dr. McCreary said, "I don't think industry is contributing very much."

The medical dean said research funds available in Canada should be increased by $2,000,000 yearly for five years to get an expanded program going.

Act in recent years. It complained offenders violate the act with "impunity."

PUBLIC EXPOSED The college's brief said the public is being exposed to practitioners "who have had no formal education in the biological sciences, let alone training in a dental school."

The Public Denturists Society of B.C. said the making of dentures should be separated from other dental services.

"There would be less indiscriminate extraction of teeth if the inordinate profit motive were removed," said the society.

He Hopes Elephant Arrives

"An elephant was sent from here to Canada. I hope it has reached you by now." This was the birthday message a Calgary woman received from her foster son in India whom she has adopted through the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada. A white toy elephant made by the boy followed the notice a few days later, much to the relief of USC headquarters staff at 78 Sparks Street, Ottawa.

ROUTINE WORK In addition to his actual contacts with patients, the average practitioner spends considerable time on "routine work"—filling in forms, keeping medical records, for example—and on hospital committees, war rounds, medical society meetings and telephone calls.

"During much of his 'time off,' he must remain in close contact with the phone in case of emergency," said the medical association.

GREAT SATISFACTION Despite the heavy schedule, "most general practitioners derive great satisfaction from their work," it added.

The work pattern was "surprisingly similar" in communities of varying sizes.

Little Boy Has His Wish

"The only son of an Oshawa couple now has what he has always wanted—an older brother. His parents have adopted a 15-year-old Korean boy, Ho Jin, through the Unitarian Service Committee, and their foster son's birthday comes one week to the day before that of his Canadian brother. The two boys are eagerly anticipating an active exchange of letters. USC headquarters is at 78 Sparks Street, Ottawa.

EDINBURGH, Scotland—Police have stopped Norman Aitken from running a raffle with himself as first prize. He was ready to be the winner's "slave" for a year.

Aitken, 26, an unemployed restaurant manager, was planning to get 5,000 tickets printed when the police stepped in.

"You can't do it," they told him. "It would be an illegal lottery."

Aitken figured that by selling 5,000 tickets at $1.40 each he would have a good income for that year's work.

Britain Revamps Forces

LONDON (CP)—Britain announced Tuesday the adoption of a policy of greater air and sea mobility for its armed forces to make them capable of reaching any world trouble spot faster.

The policy is based on a theory—not wholly in line with American thinking—that highly mobile reserves concentrated in Britain have a greater military potential than men tied down in distant foreign garrisons. It will be developed over a five-year period.

NEW POLICY

Defence Minister Harold Wilson presented the new policy in Parliament in a white paper on military planning for the next five years. It said defence expenditures for the fiscal year beginning April 1 are to be increased by £65,000,000 over the current year.

The white paper said: "Greater mobility by air and sea is the best way of fulfilling over the next five years our requirements."

"Outside Europe our forces will essentially become joint service task forces, using the air and the sea to transport men and equipment and to support operations conducted ashore."

CIVIL DEFENCE

The report also outlined a civil defence plan emphasizing evacuation of crowded cities rather than the vast engineering task of building underground shelters for protection against nuclear attack.

LONDON (CP)—The eyes of the world were on United States astronaut John Glenn, who Tuesday became the first American to orbit the earth. People on both sides of the Iron Curtain followed Glenn's three-circuit flight intently.

World leaders sent congratulatory messages to President Kennedy and Russia, which was first to achieve a successful manned orbit, said Glenn's feat "aroused great interest in the Soviet Union."

WELL DESERVED

West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer told Kennedy "the triple orbit of the earth, which the whole world was able to follow for the first time, is a very special happening in the history of humanity. I would like to congratulate you and the whole American people from the bottom of my heart."

British Prime Minister Macmillan sent a message saying: "My most sincere congratulations to you and to all concerned in your achievement of manned orbital flight. This is an outstanding and well deserved achievement."

WORDS FROM GLENN

Reporting on the "great interest" in the flight in Russia, the official news agency Tass noted that "the central Soviet radio reported the progress of the flight in several transmissions during the evening."

"In particular Soviet listeners heard Glenn's voice from space," Tass said.

Moscow radio also told home service listeners that during Glenn's third orbit the temperature control had gone out of order and that the astronaut had been advised to take over the controls.

The station also quoted a Western news agency report as saying his "flight took place later than planned and 10 months after (Soviet Maj. Yuri) Gagarin's successful flight."

RECORDING

At one point one of Moscow radio's woman announcers cut in: "Listen to John Glenn's voice recorded during the first leg of his first orbit around the earth."

Toll May Exceed 400 In West German Flood

HAMBURG (AP)—Floodwaters in the receding waters of a disastrous weekend West German flood recovered dozens of additional bodies Tuesday. The known death toll reached 277.

Hamburg authorities registered 253 dead. The other victims perished in adjoining regions of the north German coast. Officials feared the final toll may exceed 400.

Throughout most of the area, life returned to normal. In the states of Schleswig-Holstein and Lower Saxony, thousands of refugees returned to their homes. Gas, electricity and drinking water were again available.

Hamburg, hardest-hit, was slower to recover. Authorities here still advised the people to take anti-typhus injections. They reported rats had become a serious health problem.

Hornless cats and dogs were shot as menaces to health. Sections of the city of 1,800,000 were still flooded, but the water was out of most districts and many refugees went home.

MLAs Thump for Glenn

United States astronaut John Glenn got a thumping round of applause in the B.C. Legislature Tuesday for his trip into outer space. "Congratulations are due to Col. John Glenn," said Donald Brothers, Social Credit member for Rossland-Trail. "It has done a great deal to improve the situation in the free world to show we are gaining great scientific knowledge."

Moslem Meeting Key Algeria Move

PARIS (Reuters)—French hopes for a cease-fire in the seven-year Algerian war were pinned Tuesday on a meeting of the Moslem insurgent parliament in Tripoli, Libya, later this week to vote on a negotiated settlement.

The French cabinet will also be informed today of the full terms of agreements reached last week in secret Franco-Moslem peace talks.

Whatever happens in Tripoli, the government has taken exceptional police security measures here and in Algeria to

A Great Feat

NORTH AMERICA was thrilled yesterday as it listened almost minute by minute to the orbital flight of Lt. Col. John Glenn, the now famous American astronaut. It was a magnificent success, made all the more so because of the previous delays owing to weather and mechanical defects.

The U.S.A. is now beside the Soviet Union in orbital achievement, something that will raise American heads in pride and give immense satisfaction to the whole Western alliance.

The outstanding feature of this triple flight around the earth of course was that it was made in full view of the world.

Unlike the Russian flights, brilliant of accomplishment and not to be depreciated but nevertheless ambiguous in detail and lacking full disclosure, this long-awaited American venture was open to general awareness in every respect. The public could and did listen to Colonel Glenn as he circled the globe and kept up a stream of comment and report. The progress of his space vehicle was publicly followed every mile of its triple 22,000-mile journey.

These are the elements which enhance the stature of Colonel Glenn's feat and heighten the technical aspect of this dangerous space project. The success of the venture and the perfect control achieved throughout the flight and recovery process is a fine tribute to the scientists and technicians upon whose calculations and electronic devices so much depended.

One stands in awe also of the tremendous courage of Colonel Glenn, in this instance one of the great acts of bravery of our time. Not the risks of orbital flight alone had he to overcome but in view of the repeated postponements he had to gear himself afresh each time to an adventure that tested his moral fibre to the utmost.

His was an example of unique mental balance happily crowned by safety and success. The whole West will take off its hat to him.

Change of Tune

FOR THE PAST ten years—ever since he assumed a position of authority in his own country, first as a member of the elected representatives of the legislative council and later as prime minister—Dr. Cheddi Jagan of British Guiana has waged relentless war against what he terms the slavery of colonial administration.

In 1953, when British Guiana, though still a British colony wholly controlled from Whitehall, faced the threat of a take-over by Communist forces and British troops were landed to reinforce the small garrison, Dr. Jagan attacked the move "as a threat to internal quiet and world peace."

However, once the active threat of Communism had been removed and the emergency troops withdrawn, the colony once again settled down to work in an orderly fashion towards its ultimate goal of independence. To this end British Guiana was soon granted the status of a self-governing colony, responsible for all its own domestic affairs except in the area of defence, which still comes under the British colonial office.

Today, full independence is only a short distance away when the colony can choose between becoming a republic or a dominion, or to remain within the Commonwealth or leave it. Despite this advance and regardless of the faith the British government has placed in Dr. Jagan, he has persisted in his vilification of the colonial administration and his protests against the presence of the small token garrison of British soldiers.

This, at least, was the situation up to a few days ago when suddenly, in the face of widespread rioting brought about by his government policies, Dr. Jagan changed his tactics to demand that British troops come to his rescue. Apparently he no longer sees their presence as "a threat to internal quiet and world peace."

According to the latest news dispatches, British forces have once more brought peace to the colony and re-established law and order throughout the territory.

Presumably once they have ascertained that there is no likelihood of a repetition of the trouble, they will withdraw. At that time it will be interesting to note whether Dr. Jagan picks up the chorus of his favorite anti-British theme song where he left it.

Return to Dignity

MEMBERS of the Legislative Assembly are to be commended this session for allowing the return of dignity to the provincial House.

With few exceptions, debate this sitting has been maintained at a reasonably high level, and Mr. Speaker Hugh Shantz has experienced little difficulty in controlling even his most ebullient charges.

Indicative of this voluntary determination on the part of all members to reimpose good manners and acceptable parliamentary procedures, was the polite response they accorded Mr. Speaker when he reprimanded all sides of the House for the use of such words as "massive deceit," "deception," "liar," and "dirty."

It was distasteful, he said, that he had to remind members every session to modify their language.

Unfortunately as these recent aberrations as enumerated by Mr. Speaker were, they have been few compared with other years and other sessions when it became apparent that the deliberate misuse of Parliamentary privileges specifically designed to maintain the authority, independence and dignity of the council had become the rule of the House.

Such was the situation, in fact, that a year ago this newspaper felt called upon to comment: "In many eyes, both sides of the House have been guilty of the most flagrant abuse of privilege. Dignity has been discarded and replaced by coarse invective, childish bad manners and language bordering sometimes on blasphemy."

"Such procedure makes a mockery of great and proud traditions and hardly promotes the confidence of the public in its elected representatives."

By and large, the perseverance of Mr. Speaker combined with the members' recognition of their own responsibilities have resulted in good parliamentary order once again being restored within the Assembly.

How great this sacrifice to orderly procedure falls upon the House at large can only be guessed at through the occasional lapse into former bad habits by the individual member. Yet, even to those who most resent its restriction, the reward of restoration of public confidence should be sufficient.

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax ...

BY TOM TAYLOR

SOMEbody suggested the other day that women should withdraw their love from their husbands in order to compel them to a peaceful viewpoint in world affairs.

Nobody seems to have jumped to the proposal with any great enthusiasm, however, so one must conclude it isn't popular.

The feminine influence isn't to be despised, however, nor has it been absent in the long realm of history. Many a ruler did what he did because his wife nudged him to it.

Even today I suppose women leaders are ready to pay attention to what their wives say. Many a seeming dictator is not as masterful at home as he is in his office.

It was this that made me reflect on one sentence in Mrs. Khrushchev's radio appeal to the women of the United States. She urged that atom bombs should be sunk along with other weapons "in the deepest part of the ocean," so that everyone can "live with out weapons as good neighbors."

That was a woman speaking the mother of children, whose sentiments can't be doubted. When she was in the United States with her husband two years ago Mrs. Khrushchev created a fine impression of simple and homely kindness. Reaction to her husband was much different, but she won favorable recognition.

It is without prejudice therefore that one wishes she were able to persuade Mr. Khrushchev to come forward with a similar proposal, without strings attached.

The assumption is of course, and it may be a good one, that if international relations were left to the women there would be no need of ban-the-bomb demonstrations. They, the women, would see to it that no bombs were left and that no new ones were made.

But the women of both East and West would have to be co-opted and joined in like endeavor. I would feel more comforted if, say, Mrs. Kennedy were allowed to be listened to by Russian women in a similar broadcast directed to them.

All these peace gestures must be pursued on both sides if there is to be real hope of success.

Mrs. Khrushchev mentioned the friendship that existed between USSR and the USA in Roosevelt's time, but this was a forced wartime alliance and Russia hadn't then muscled into the world leadership she claims now.

I must say too I thought I detected the hand of her husband in her affirmation that nuclear testing was the fault of the West and not of Russia. Husbands can persuade wives as well as wives persuade husbands, you know.

Anyway it was perhaps hardly diplomatic while trying to enlist the sympathy of the wives of America to blame the latter's husbands for the current state of international tensions.

However, there's no reason to question Mrs. Khrushchev's feelings as a woman or her desire that peace should rule throughout the world. And there will always be the hope that she can do something towards that end through her husband.

There is talk of another summit meeting. It is not being facetious to suggest that a summit meeting of the wives of national leaders might bring better results. If they were unanimous they might be able to work wonders with their collective husbands.

Press Fears in South Africa

Blindfold Through a Minefield

By STANLEY UYS, from Cape Town

PUBLISHING a newspaper in South Africa, in the words of a Johannesburg editor, is like walking blindfold through a minefield.

The Criminal Law Amendment Act, for example, contains the vague and ominous provision, which is of particular application to newspapers: "Any person who uses any language or does any act or thing calculated to cause any person or persons in general to commit an offence by way of protest against a law or in support of any campaign for the repeal or modification of any law or the variation or abolition of the application or administration of any law shall be guilty of an offence."

The penalties are severe: a maximum fine of £600, or five years' imprisonment, or a whipping of ten strokes.

Several other laws affect the press directly: the Atomic Energy Act, the Public Safety Act, the Native Administration Act, the Suppression of Communism Act, the Official Secrets Act, the Prisons Act, the Riotous Assemblies Act, etc.

In a country like South Africa, where the authorities are bitterly hostile to a section of the press—the English-language press which supports the opposition—these laws are more than ordinarily restrictive.

It is also a practice of the security branch of the police force to harass newspapermen and to demand to know their sources of information.

At one time last year seven newspaper prosecutions were in progress. The editor of a daily newspaper was charged with contravening the emergency regulations (which were in operation between April and November, 1960) after the Sharpeville shootings) by publishing an interview with two young Canadians who merely described South Africa as a country afraid to talk.

Two weekly political journals were also charged under the emergency regulations—one charge is still pending—while three newspapermen were jailed for refusing to disclose their sources of information.

Now an Undesirable Publications Bill has been brought before Parliament to provide for government control of certain printed matter. This bill has been introduced principally to extend to local publications powers which the government already possesses over imported works. The government, for example, can ban imported periodicals and "objects," like calendars, posters, etc., and it bans thousands every year.

There is nothing to stop anyone, however, from reprinting a banned publication in South Africa, provided he does not contravene any laws like the pornography laws. The government will close this loophole with the Undesirable Publications Act.

The Packack

Final Indignity

By GREGORY CLARK

WHAT must be the feelings of a composer of a beautiful song or melody, such, for example, as those in Carnot, when he hears, not long after the release of the record, what the fast-back boys of the record business do to it? Barely has the lovely composition won the hearts of the public when along come the "individualistic" pop singers, all vying with one another to see who can scarp it up and distort it most effectively.

The final indignity comes when the jazz performers take hold of it. Jazz has created little material of its own. It relies very largely on newspapers will be prohibited from publishing anything which "brings any section of the inhabitants of the republic into ridicule or contempt," or "is harmful to the relations between any sections of the inhabitants of the republic," or "is prejudicial to the safety of the state, the general welfare or the peace and good order."

These very charges, in fact, are being levelled constantly at the opposition press by the government, and the unreasonableness of editors over yet another law with vaguely defined offences is understandable.

In addition, the Newspaper Press Union, the proprietors' organization in South Africa, proposes now to set up a press council (to be known as a "Board of Reference") to enforce a voluntary code of conduct. The code deals mainly with accuracy in reporting, the presentation of sexual matters and the "slanting" of news, but its final clause reads: "Comment should take due cognizance of the complex racial problems of South Africa."

Critics of the code argue that this is a political clause open to varying interpretations. The press council will consist of three members: a retired judge, and one representative each from the Afrikaans-language press and the English-language press. Neither editors nor journalists will be represented on the board, however, nor is there any indication of how their "trial" will be conducted.

The president of the Newspaper Press Union denies that "outside interference or pressure" influenced the union in the formulation of the code. It is known, however, that representatives of the Newspaper Press Union had discussions with the government on the proposed code and press council.

It is also recalled that last April, the prime minister, Dr. Hendrik Verwoerd, said: "The press is going far beyond what freedom of the press means and it is approaching very closely to what license of the press is. One only hopes ... that the press will organize some form of self-control itself."

"I have always hoped and still hope that it will not be necessary to call the press to order. I hope that the press will take this to heart and that those in control will get over and will find means of avoiding further harm to South Africa by going further than they should."

Some opposition press managers, who have agreed to establish a voluntary press council, believe they are averting statutory press control in this way, or at least warding it off for a few years.

No one in the opposition press seriously believes that the opposition newspapers are presently in need of self-censorship. These newspapers are free from fierce competition and they conduct themselves usually in a laudably and gentlemanly way, although admittedly they criticize Dr. Verwoerd's race policies vigorously.

Recently, Die Transvaler, the government organ, said the insistence of the "volk" (public) for action against the press was becoming irresistible. It hinted that some of its readers were demanding what amounted to unlawful action against the opposition press.

Soon after the publication of this attack, the Newspaper Press Union announced that it intended establishing a voluntary press council to enforce a code of conduct. The Civil Rights League described the union's action as "cowardly."

The South African Society of Journalists is utterly opposed to a statutory press council, administered by the government.

The West Indian Federation

So Dies a New Nation

By J. MALCOLM FERGUSON, from London

THE British government decision to wind up the West Indian Federation has been inevitable ever since Jamaica decided, by referendum, to pull out of the nascent state. It is the sad end to a dream of a new English-speaking American nation, which would have become the 23rd sovereign country in the New World.

Yet the collapse of the federation was probably inevitable. Not because of its size—after all, a population of three millions is larger than that of most Central American countries, and of many new African members of the United Nations—but because of its haphazard geographical distribution around the Caribbean, the imbalance between the population and development of the islands, and the lack of a feeling of nationhood among the West Indians themselves.

Even West Indian immigrants in Britain and elsewhere tended to think of themselves first as Trinidadians, Jamaicans, Barbadians or various kinds of "small islanders," however they might be lumped together by the local inhabitants. In the West Indies, among those who have never travelled, this parochialism was—and is—often more marked.

Nevertheless, the dream should have become reality, for there were factors which bound the islands together as well as those which separated them.

Not least, the dream was shared by a large number of the islands' population, as well as by a large Portuguese, Chinese and other minorities, who set a good example in the peaceful co-existence of a number of races. At the same time on independent West Indies, to which in the long run the mainland territories of British Guiana and British Honduras would have adhered, would have removed the last important vestiges of colonialism in the Americas.

But colonialism will now persist, not through the wish of the colonial power, but through the narrowness and short-sightedness and insular selfishness of West Indian politicians.

Jamaica will become independent alone. With 1,500,000 people and a growing industrial development she can afford to do so, and her independent constitution is now being discussed in London. Trinidad, with her oil, will almost certainly follow the example of Jamaica. But the other islands are totally unviable, even if they dream of standing alone.

Almost all of them are poor, and dependent on a single crop—sugar—with a world price that fluctuates and involves only seasonal employment. Their populations are very small.

Apart from Barbados (232,000 people) none of them—

Antigua, Dominica (no relation to the Dominican Republic), Grenada, Montserrat, St. Kitts-Nevis-Anguilla, St. Lucia or St. Vincent, the Caymans, Turks or Caicos islands—has a population greater than 50,000 or an area greater than 100 square miles. Their only chance of development lies in the U.S. tourist trade diverted by politics from Cuba and the Dominican Republic.

For these small islands federation was the only alternative to a permanently dependent colonial status. The principal West Indians were not small islanders—Norman Manley and Sir Alexander Bustamante are Jamaicans, Dr. Eric Williams is a Trinidadian. None of them, though pledged to the federal ideal, was willing to relinquish responsibilities and power at home in the wider interest of the West Indies. The first and only prime minister of the West Indies, Sir Grantley Adams of Barbados, was well past his prime on the day of his party's election in 1958. It is as if George Washington had chosen to remain governor of Virginia and left a respectable elderly gentleman from a smaller state to become the first president of the United States.

As it is, the disruption of the federation has already raised problems for the territories which have to co-operate in such matters as defence, overseas representation, foreign technical assistance, justice (the Federal Supreme Court education) the University College of the West Indies and several other vital matters which since 1968 have fallen within the jurisdiction of the federation.

An independent federation would have had its problems, though they would have been less perhaps than those successfully surmounted by federal systems in Canada, the U.S., Mexico, Brazil and Argentina—all of them rather larger countries. But the West Indies, as a nation that might have been, will face more difficult problems still.

The ... The odd thing is that, despite all ... prognostications of moral degeneracy, generations of western, doctors and tourists keep on growing up to be reasonably responsible citizens. They even get old enough, in the end, to disapprove of what the next generation is doing.

A Toronto Baptist clergyman has described it as a "distortion caused by sin" and urged his congregation to have as part of it, not of those other dances interestingly designated as the Slop and the Mashed Potatoes. The principal of a girls' school has abolished it for her pupils, and a Buffalo Roman Catholic bishop has banned it for all parochial school and youth organization activities in his parish ...

Odor of Decay?

It was with amazement that I waited for the public's reaction to the building of a new and larger pulp mill at Crofton, near Duncan—but apparently no one in Victoria has travelled to Port Alberni lately and considered that this could well be Victoria, Duncan and Salt Spring Island in the near future.

It's true that this enlarged mill will employ additional people but will all of us have to suffer the consequences? I understand that in Port Alberni, you can't open your window or the smell will drive you out; park your car, unless you put a plastic sheet over it, or do the family wash, unless it's dried in the house.

How many of us have vacationed in Port Alberni? How many auto courts, and other businesses, who depend on the tourists will suffer before regulations are enforced to stop the mills from polluting the air? Surely the chamber of commerce, publicity bureau, city council and all those interested in Victoria and the surrounding areas should look into the matter now, before this new mill announces itself with the smell of prosperity or will it be the odor of a decaying tourist business of Victoria?

Power Takeover

It is very regrettable that Mr. Bennett should take action as he did concerning B.C. Power Corporation. Steps as these are more attributable to some other countries I know of. Certainly the investing public will lose faith in any area where such liberties are tolerated. It is regrettable to say the least. Your country, as well as our U.S.A., can ill afford actions of this nature.

Ready to Tell

The front page story, "Traitors-for-Peace Will Blab to UN" reports a statement by Dr. Alcock that the Canadian Peace Research Institute might study the proposal that, as part of a disarmament agreement, all heads of states should simultaneously announce in all news media that their people are released from oaths of secrecy and that it is now their duty to report infractions of a disarmament agreement to the UN.

Question for the CPRI: would the people go along with this and would it be possible for a national government to recruit the necessary number of personnel for the illegal manufacture and/or handling of nuclear weapons without being found out? (Of course, professional, roving inspection teams would also be used.)

It is interesting that a preliminary test has already been carried out. A Gallup poll was conducted and the following question asked: "If you, yourself, knew that someone in your country was attempting to secretly make forbidden weapons, would you report this to the office of the world-wide inspection organization in your country?" No previous educational program had been conducted to the effect that it would be a good thing to report infractions. Nevertheless, 80 per cent of the Americans questioned answered "yes."

Red Grain Vessels
Set Harbor Record

VANCOUVER (CP)—A record 12 ships at one time are in Vancouver harbor to continue loading Communist China's latest order for 40,000,000 bushels of Canadian grain. A total of 41 ships were in port Tuesday, many of them also loading grain for such countries as Britain, Japan and Germany.

New Indictment
Delays Hearing

VANCOUVER (CP)—Hearing of charges against 38 persons accused of conspiring to traffic in narcotics Tuesday was delayed at least another week by indictment submitted by special prosecutor Russell Twining.

COUNTS REPEATED

The new indictment followed protests from defence lawyer Larry Hill that the original conspiracy counts were contrary to the Narcotics Control Act. The new indictment separates drug possession and trafficking counts.

All 38 were to have elected their method of trial Tuesday but Magistrate Gordon Scott ruled this would not be possible in view of readjustment of the indictments.

The crown charges that 16 of the accused were members of a minor conspiracy dealing in caches of drugs in capsule form and 22 were members of a major drug syndicate distributing heroin in bulk.

Magistrate Scott warned that he expected the hearing of those charged as members of the minor syndicate to proceed March 5 and likely will take two weeks. Date of hearing of the others will be set next Tuesday.

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Fulton denied in the Commons Tuesday that he or Commissioner Harvison of the RCMP had ever said that the Sicilian-based crime syndicate, Mafia, had control over crime in Canada's big cities.

He said that both his speeches and those of Commissioner Harvison to police conventions and other bodies recently had merely pointed to the danger that foreign crime syndicates might get a foothold in Canada.

OTTAWA (CP)—Hazen Argue bided his time Tuesday amid growing indications that he is moving toward the Liberal party and that he will be acceptable as a Liberal MP.

"The lights are always in the window for Liberal-minded Canadians," Opposition Leader Pearson said in an interview when asked whether the former CCF-New Democratic Party parliamentary leader would be welcome in Liberal ranks.

Mr. Pearson said he hasn't talked directly with Mr. Argue "as yet." The Liberal leader left the capital Tuesday for a speaking engagement in Toronto and other business which will keep him away until late Thursday.

Meanwhile, Mr. Argue, who quit the NDP Sunday, charging it has become the tool of a labor clique, began arrangements to vacate the office he occupied as its parliamentary leader and also discussed with Speaker Roland Michener shifting his seat in the Commons. OTTAWA (CP)—Could Hazen Argue become the leader of a new "Assiniboia party," a political home for disgruntled farmers and non-union socialists?

The possibility was seen Tuesday in Conservative and Liberal party circles, and Mr. Argue himself acknowledged it. He even suggested the name of his Saskatchewan riding might be the name for a party.

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is devising a solution to the butter surplus problem which "should soon be defined and applied," Secretary of State Dorian told the Commons Tuesday.

He said he doesn't think that solution should be to curb production.

The butter surplus of more than 200,000,000 pounds is one of several farm problems which the government intends to deal with "very shortly," the minister said as the Commons continued the sixth day of the debate on the Speech from the Throne.

SIMILAR STEP

An international food bank would be valuable in helping disperse farm surpluses, Mr. Dorian said. Switzerland took a similar course in over-production of dairy items by stepping up international contributions rather than asking producers to limit output.

SHORT UNSURE

At the same time, Mr. Dorian added, it is time that medical doctors agreed on dairy foods. An unfortunate campaign that seemed "most unjust," indicated dairy products in certain quantities could be harmful to health.

Fortunately, another school of medical thought was countering this theory.

Mr. Dorian's remarks about an early government move in the butter problem reflected the independent farmer - socialist group, he did not discount the possibility. Later, in an informal press conference outside his office door he was asked whether he should be designated now as an independent MP.

"If you were fishing around for another label and want a party label, you might take 'Assiniboia,' he said. "It would be very appropriate."

Canada's first post office, in the modern sense, was established at Halifax in 1755.

VANCOUVER (CP)—A pilot plan of prepaid dental insurance is likely to be introduced in British Columbia. It was indicated Tuesday at a sitting of the royal commission on health services.

Gagliardi Is Fun If Sitting

DUNCAN—Go to the B.C. government if you want better maintenance of roads in the reserve, city engineer R. E. Potter told Cowichan Indian leaders at the annual meeting of the city and Indian councils Monday.

"Mr. Gagliardi is lots of fun and will be delighted to see you," said Mr. Potter.

"Yes," said Chief Louise Underwood, "if he sits down long enough to listen."

TORONTO (CP)—Rev. J. R. Mutchmor of the United Church of Canada said Tuesday Canadian armed forces must be equipped with nuclear weapons.

Mr. Mutchmor, secretary of the United Church board of evangelism and social service, made the remarks in his report to the board's annual meeting which began Monday and continues to Friday.

NEAR-EQUAL BASIS
He said Canada should decide in favor of the move and put it to the United States "on a near - equal partnership basis."

He compared international politics to a big poker game in which Canada holds one ace—control of the larger part of North America.

FAVORABLE TERMS
Mr. Mutchmor said this region is the chief protective area for the U.S. and Canada can rent it to Washington on favorable terms.

"With this ace in the hole we can stay in the poker game," he said.

CHIPS OUR WAY
"Some of the chips will come our way. We should win more Washington contracts, get lower tariffs and obtain a larger share of North America's overseas markets."

He said the world seems to have ridden out the storm caused by the Russian series of bomb tests, making arguments based on radiation hazards "not very influential" as far as Canada's external affairs policy is concerned.

ALL-TIME HIGH
Mr. Mutchmor said the Canadian consumer debt is at an all-time high, the dollar is devalued and the country faces a government budget deficit of nearly $1,000,000,000.

"It is plain that something is going edgewise in our financial structure. It is time to put our house in order and a first objective should be a balanced federal budget."

Scientist's Records Go Up in Flames

MONTREAL (CP)—Officials fear records of months of valuable research work by internationally-known Dr. Hans Selye were destroyed Tuesday when fire swept a wing at the University of Montreal.

About 200 rats, dogs and guinea pigs were killed.

B.C. About to Buy Forbidden Plateau

A CPR assistant manager is coming to Victoria to negotiate purchase by the provincial parks branch of most of famed Forbidden Plateau, Recreation Minister Westwood told the legislature yesterday.

He said the property, which would be added to Strathcona Park, includes ski slopes which make the area a skier's paradise and is part of the E and N land grant region.

MLAs impending E and N land-belt sales will not impair the negotiations.

"The interests of sportsmen and other recreationists will be safeguarded to the fullest extent of my abilities," he said.

Mr. Westwood said he hoped to announce in April at least a partial solution to the access problem along the Cowichan River. The Cowichan Fish and Game Club wants an anglers' footpath along the south bank.

Rulings Clear Power Suit

VANCOUVER (CP)—The provincial government lost out Tuesday in two pre-trial issues in the B.C. Power Corporation's suit to test the validity of the B.C. Electric Company was taken over by the government last August.

The suit also asks the court to decide what the firm was worth at the time of the expropriation.

Mr. Justice Arthur Lord, in B.C. Supreme Court, turned down an application by the attorney-general to have the validity of the takeover tested first in a separate action.

He also ruled that the government-owned B.C. Electric must produce certain documents requested by the B.C. Power Corporation, former parent of B.C.E.

The rulings on a series of pre-trial issues will enable the Power Corporation's main action to go to trial.

About 100 fishermen from the Campbell River-Quathiaski Cove area will meet here today to enlist the help of MLAs in their campaign for salmon conservation.

The members of the Independent United Fishermen's Union will meet in the Williams Building, 749 Broughton, at 9 a.m. before going to the buildings to lay their plans before the MLAs.

Points include a law limiting commercial fishing licences, an end to ocean salmon fishing, extension of the offshore limit to 12 miles to protect halibut, sole, cod and all sea-bottom fish and some control of the predator dogfish.

They also will urge rehabilitation of salmon resources by stream clearance, husbanding spawning beds and seeding non-producing salmon streams.

Where the points come under Ottawa's jurisdiction, the MLAs will be urged to seek federal help.

Where's Police School?

Greater Victoria civic leaders want to know what happened to a proposal that a joint-training school for Greater Victoria police should be established.

A meeting of the inter-municipal committee yesterday decided the four municipal police chiefs should be asked what happened to a joint study they were asked to make on the proposal.

The question came up during discussion of Mayor R. B. Wilson's proposal that the four police forces should be amalgamated into one force.

Agar Pays Out $300; Five Others Dig Deep

George Agar was a fiery type when he played hockey, and the last coach of the Victoria Cougars still finds it difficult to hold his temper in check.

Letting it get away last Friday proved costly, Agar yesterday receiving notification from Al Leader, president of the Western Hockey League, that he was being fined $300 for punching a San Francisco timekeeper near the end of a game which Agar's Los Angeles Blades lost.

Agar became incensed when he thought the timekeeper had let the clock run for a short while after play had been called, claiming heatedly that it had cost his club three seconds.

The argument ended up with punches being thrown, Agar reportedly catching one from the willing-to-fight-back timekeeper as well as paying $100 for each second he claimed had been lost.

Leader didn't stop with Agar, handing out fines to five players as well.

Fined $50 each were defencemen Ralph Keller and McCusker was fined $50 for deliberately injuring Hughes and Hughes was tagged for $25 for trying to injure McCusker.

McCusker paid the automatic $10 fine for a misconduct penalty, the automatic $35 fine for a game misconduct and was handed an additional $25 stipend for threatening referee Scotty Morrison.

Peace reigned for the most part last night as Portland Buckaroos continued to go about clinching the Southern Division championship and the Canucks lost to Edmonton Flyers, 4-2. Portland won, 4-3, in Calgary.

Darts Season Dims 'Telly' Screens in Old Country Pubs

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP)—Television sets in the pubs are being switched off this month while attention shifts to the darts board.

The organized darts season is in full swing, with more than 4,000,000 competitive players working their way through local, district and regional tournaments towards the national finals.

Darts, the most popular indoor game in Britain, evolved from archery, and in its present form dates from the 16th century. Records show there were darts boards hanging in the Mayflower when the Pilgrim Fathers set sail in 1620. It is thought the archers themselves first developed darts as a short-range defensive weapon, comparing with the long-bow much as a pistol compares with a rifle.

The dart game now has been tamed and standardized. Strict regulations say the thrower's toe must be seven feet, six inches from the board, and the bull's eye must be five feet, eight inches from the floor. The size of the board, the width of its 20 radial divisions and the distance between the double and treble rings are precisely laid down. In the standard game each team or individual starts with 301 points and works down. A double is needed to "get off" and to finish.

Although the game savors of rigid conformity at the top, the whole organization rests at bottom on the free-and-easy atmosphere of the nation's 65,000 public houses. Darts are part of the ritual of drinking a pint with the boys at the local.

Each pub recruits its own team from its regular customers and organizes matches with neighboring public houses. In the annual competitions the best local players go on to the next round. Prizes for team and individual championships are offered by two Sunday newspapers.

Pub matches involve a fair amount of betting, and there are often players who try to conceal their real skill until the stakes have mounted.

Although technically amateurs, good players can sometimes demand 10 shillings "appearance" money for away games, and five free pints for home games.

The pub-keepers know that a track team will attract profits in terms of thirsty supporters. Some have been known to entice experts away from rival houses. Most landlords merely treat their teams with free beer.

Johnny Ross, chairman of the National Darts Association, says the standard of play has been improving, but there's an old-timer in every local who'll tell of the days "when darts was darts."

One of the famed aces was the late Jim Pike. He could rip a cigarette from a bystander's mouth and impale it on a named double. He could also hit a selected double in three darts when the board was covered with paper.

And one octogenarian in

Pike's old pub swears he once saw the master three times split the cork at treble 20 with a six-inch spike.

Sawchuk Rumor Denied

Detroit Farms Out LaBine

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit Red Wings Tuesday sent forward Eastern Professional Hockey League's Leo LaBine, a 10-year veteran of the National Hockey League, to their Sault Ste. Marie farm in the Michigan Professional Hockey League.

OUTDOORS with Alec Merriman

The B.C. fish and game branch will initiate a hunter safety educational program aimed to reach all hunters, whether or not they are fish and game club members, Recreation Minister Earle Westwood told the legislature yesterday.

He said the warning posters will be spread throughout hunting areas, pointing out the dangers involved through carelessness, and a newspaper advertising campaign will point out the various hunting regulations which control hunting in this province.

Mr. Westwood's disclosures will add fuel to the fire of the Victoria Fish and Game Club's hunter safety panel, which will meet at the Goldstream clubhouse Sunday at 2 p.m., especially to try to find ways to promote safety in the woods. Anybody interested in hunter safety, whether a club member or not, is invited to take part in the meeting.

"I hope all hunters in the province will identify themselves with fish and game club leaders, who, all over the province, are showing the way to greater safety and greater enjoyment in the world about us," Mr. Westwood said in the legislature.

He said that the five B.C. hunting deaths this year were the result of carelessness, but pointed out that the hunting accident picture is steadily improving. From 1935 to 1939 there were 13 fatalities per 10,000 hunters, 11 serious accidents and 29 not serious. In 1961 there were 40 fatalities per 10,000 hunters, 56 serious accidents and 12 not serious. The picture showed a steady decline in intervening years.

He said the reason for the decline is "more care and more education," but he added that "I refuse to be satisfied with our progress."

The Optimist-Ranger Safety Film, now being filmed by B.C. government photographers is another part of the expanded safety program and should be ready for release in mid-May, he said.

Mr. Westwood believed education for the hunter is the best safety factor and added "It is impossible to legislate care into the heart of a hunter."

"It has been proven in the U.S. that persons who are color blind are rarely involved in hunting accidents. This is believed to be because they are more cautious than others, more anxious to be sure of their target," he said.

"We know that where a boy is trained in the handling of firearms, his chances of causing an accident are reduced," he said.

Mr. Westwood commended the Junior Firearms Safety Program, carried out jointly by the B.C. Federation of Fish and Game Clubs and his fish and game branch. More than 2,000 young people have had the course, or are in the process of having it, and "we have made a stout start in bringing our teenage boys and girls into harmony with outdoor environment," he said.

He said the major contribution of the course is that it teaches the fundamentals of sportsmanship in the field. It is aimed at youngsters who are interested in firearms sports.

At the Victoria Fish and Game Club meeting Monday night Junior safety committee chairman Bill Alder said registrations for this year's Junior safety program will start next week at Stan Williams' Hunting and Fishing, 1325 Government Street, with all youngsters 13 to 17 years, boys and girls, eligible.

First course will start the first week in April and registrations will be accepted up until about March 15. Requirements are that youngsters must take out a junior fish and game membership and have the permission of a parent or guardian.

The program will include instruction from experts in woodcraft, fish and game, field manners, outdoor behavior, small bore shooting and actual techniques of hunting, fishing and game recognition.

Mr. Westwood paid tribute to optometrists of the province who are working with fish and game clubs to detect eye-sight faults among hunters. He also expressed pleasure that 70 per cent of all fish and game clubs have some form of public liability insurance for their members.

Annual supper meeting and dance of the Chinook Club will be held Saturday at 7 p.m. in the C & C Hall, 904 Government. Election of officers and awarding of trophies will take place. Tickets may be picked up at Stan Williams' Hunting and Fishing, 1325 Government, or at Gordon's Sporting Goods, 1105 Hillside.

Federal fisheries guardian Jack Brooks will talk about his experience in the salmon fishery, conservation, and streambed development at the Victoria Fish and Game Club fishing chapter meeting at the Goldstream clubhouse Monday night. Brooks has some good ideas about possible development of lower Island streams, which should be of great interest to all fishermen.

Shack Back On Street

TORONTO (CP) — Eddie Shack, Toronto Maple Leaf rightwinger injured Saturday in a National Hockey League game against New York Rangers, was released from hospital Tuesday.

Reports were that his knee injury—first diagnosed as torn ligaments—was not as serious. He will see the club doctor today and if the news is good he will be practising Friday or Saturday. But he will not likely play this weekend.

FOUR-BALL WINNERS

Sam Hill and J. Long combined for a 62 1/2 net score Sunday to win the four-ball, best-ball competition at Uplands Golf Club. F. Partington and W. Jeans were second with net 63.

Bathgate Strengthens NHL Points Margin

This could be the season that Andy Bathgate finally wins the National Hockey League's Art Ross Trophy.

In the last six seasons, the starry New York rightwinger has placed fifth once, fourth three times and third twice but he has never been able to finish the season as point-leader.

He's getting stiff competition this season, but the records show he is slowly gaining ground. On Feb. 4, Bathgate led Gordie Howe, a five-time winner, by three points, Stan Mikita by seven points and Bobby Hull by eight points.

SIX-AHEAD

Going into tonight's games, Bathgate is six points ahead of Howe, nine ahead of Hull and 13 ahead of Mikita, who appears to have dropped out of contention.

However, Howe has two games in hand and the veteran Detroit star has been picking up his points steadily in recent games. Both Hull and Bathgate have 13 games left.

GOAL LEADER

Bathgate leads in assists with 49 and Hull, with 35, appears reasonably certain to be this season's leading goal-scorer. Lou Fontinato of Montreal has the penalty championship practically clinched with a debit of 159 minutes and no one within 60 minutes.

Montreal's Jacques Plante is almost certainly in line for a sixth Vezina Trophy in seven seasons. He has a goals-against average of 2.29 per game. Next is Chicago's Glenn Hall, with a 2.60 average. Hall leads in shutouts with seven.

'It Seems to Drift Off To Right One Degree'

The following is a transcript of recordings made during the pass of the spacecraft across the southern United States during the first orbit.

Astronaut Alan Shepard in the control centre: Friendship 7, this is Canaveral.
Glenn: Friendship 7 to Canaveral. Read you loud and clear. Over.
Shepard: Roger, Friendship 7. Read you loud and clear. Stand by for... Please.
Glenn: Roger.
Shepard: Friendship 7, this is Cap Com. Would you give us the difficulty you were having in the yaw. Over.
Glenn: Roger. This is Friendship 7. I am going on fly-by wire so I can control more accurately. It just started as I got to Guaymas and it appears to drift off to the right about one degree per second. It would go

'A Little Difficulty'

Shepard: Roger, Friendship 7. We are having a little difficulty. Start off on your 30-minute report.
Glenn: This is Friendship 7, controlling manually by fly-by wire. Having no trouble controlling. It controls very nicely.
Shepard: Roger.
Glenn: Fly-by wire auto gyro is normal. I have a beautiful view out of the window of the coast at the present time. Can see away down across Florida. Cannot quite see the cape yet.
Shepard: Roger. Still reading you. Are we in communication yet? Over.
Glenn: Roger: I will be out of communication fairly soon and thought if the other call was in would stop the check. Over.

Medical Status Excellent

Ground: Roger. Understand. Friendship 7, your medical status is excellent.
Glenn: Roger. Friendship 7, the sun is coming through the window and is very warm where it hits the suit. I get quite a bit of heat from it.
Ground: Roger. Understand.
Ground: Cape flight, this is Canaveral system.
Glenn: This is Friendship 7. We will do the horizon check now.
Ground: Standing by.
Glenn: This is Friendship 7, coming up through 14 degrees.
Ground: I got your... degrees from the ground. We are reading you at about 14.
Glenn: This is Friendship 7. I have no problem at all controlling on the horizon.
Ground: I understand you

A Very Visible Band

Glenn: Roger. I was just making some for the recorder, and the only unusual thing I have noticed was the rather high, what appeared to be a haze layer up some seven or eight degrees above the horizon on the night side, the stars I can see through it as they go down toward the real horizon, but it is a very visible single band, or layer or... above the normal horizon. Over.
Cooper: Roger. Very interesting.
Glenn: I had a lot of cloud cover coming off of Africa. It has thinned out considerably now, and although I cannot definitely see... there is a lot of moonlight here that reflects off of what clouds there are. Over.
Cooper: Roger... and excellent, John... shortly you may observe some lights down

Better Star Patterns

Glenn: I have a... picking up some of the star patterns better than I was just off Africa.
Cooper: Have you sighted Orion yet? Over.
Glenn: Negative. Do not have Orion in sight yet.
Cooper: Within a few seconds you should have Orion and... Sirius probably in sight; very shortly thereafter Orion will be off to your right. Over.
Glenn: Roger.
Cooper: Do you have time to send up a blood pressure reading? Over.
Glenn: Roger. Stand by.
Cooper: Standing by for blood pressure whenever you...
Glenn: I am already sending it to be picked up. Over.
Cooper: You are in good shape.

Governor Invites Glenn to the Fair

OLYMPIA (AP)—Gov. Rosellini has invited astronaut John Glenn to the Seattle World's Fair.
He extended the invitation Tuesday in a telegram congratulating Glenn on behalf of the people of the state.
"As you may know, the fair will review man's technological progress and forecast new developments in the space age," Rosellini said in a telegram to Glenn.
"It would be most appropriate if you could attend during the second national conference on the peaceful uses of outer space in Seattle May 7-10."

Scientists Off to U.S. As Protest

LONDON (Reuters)—Three of Britain's top space scientists are taking jobs in the United States because they feel the British government is not giving enough support to space research, two British newspapers report.
The Daily Mail and Daily Sketch say that Safford Dauncy and Brian Stuart, employed by the Hawker-Siddeley Aircraft Company, will work for the Radio Corporation of America.
The third man, Dr. Andrew Hornes-Siddle, was quoted as saying, "I may join the others at RCA, but I have had another offer from an American aircraft firm which I am still considering."

Blast Off!

Belching smoke and flame and with a roar like the passing of a hundred freight trains the successful Atlas-Mercury space package carrying Astronaut John Glenn into searing three-orbit flight around earth blasts off from Cape Canaveral launching pad.—(AP Photofax.)

If You Wondered...

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—A cramped space capsule offers no toilet facilities, but astronaut John Glenn expected no problems.
For two days he has been eating a low residue diet, easily digested, and producing little bulk.
As many celebrities who must remain in public for hours at a time, so Glenn wore under his flying suit a plastic tube and container for bladder relief.

Stamp Marks Space Feat

OTTAWA (CP)—A special United States postage stamp has been issued to mark Tuesday's orbital flight of astronaut John H. Glenn. It was announced here by U.S. Postmaster-General J. Edward Day.
Mr. Day, here on an official visit, presented copies of the new stamp to Canadian Postmaster-General William Hamilton. Almost simultaneously, the stamp was being presented to Mrs. Glenn at her home near Washington.

An album containing a full sheet of the four-cent stamp was presented to Mrs. Glenn at her home in Arlington, W.Va.,

Three Orbits

Real Fireball of Ride Says Hearty Astronaut

U.S. Space Triumph Cheered by World

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Astronaut John Glenn rocketed around the world three times Tuesday and landed safely while the world cheered the greatest United States space feat.

The 40-year-old marine lieutenant-colonel splashed down in the Atlantic Ocean near Grand Turk Island in The Bahamas, about 700 miles southeast of here, at 2:43 p.m. EST.
To circle the globe three times and travel more than 21,000 miles in the process took him only four hours, 56 minutes.
Glenn and his capsule were plucked from the waters by the destroyer Noa at 3:01 p.m. Glenn reported "my condition is excellent."
Glenn's first comment as his capsule Friendship 7 descended toward the gentle and tepid waters was contained in a radio message to Project Mercury Control here:
"Boy, that was a real fireball of a ride!"

Capsule Plucked from Sea

do message to Project Mercury Control here:
"Boy, that was a real fireball of a ride!"

THE DECISION
The decision to make that third orbit, after some minor technical difficulties had developed during the first two, was Glenn's.

When asked if he wanted to try for three, he replied:
"Affirmative, I'm ready to go."

GETS BIG JOLT
Even so, he landed some 45 to 55 miles short of the planned landing area after firing his braking rockets at 2:30 p.m. The reverse rockets gave him such a jolt, he cried:
"I feel like I'm heading back towards Hawaii."

In any case, he came safely through and his main parachute, which opened at 10,000 feet, settled him down gently.

GLENN RAILED
Saluting the spaceman, President Kennedy hailed Glenn as the kind of man of whom the U.S. could be proud.

"We have a long way to go in the space race and we started late," Kennedy added. "This is the new ocean and we must sail on it and be in a position second to none."
As he started the third and last leg of his trip around the world at 17,530 miles an hour, Glenn reported:
"I feel real good. No problems at all."

CLIMBS INTO SUN
Glenn began his climb into the blue-black of space at 9:47 a.m. when his 365,000-pound-thrust Atlas missile blossomed with clouds of smoke and bright yellow flame and arched eastward into a brilliant sun hanging over the Atlantic.

Except for some minor troubles with his attitude control jets—little gas nozzles that establish his relation to the horizon—the entire operation was a miracle of precision rocketry.

"BEAUTIFUL BLUE"
Once he said: "The horizon is a beautiful blue." At another point he exclaimed "I can see the whole state of Florida spread out like a map. I can see all the way back to the Mississippi Delta."

"SHORT DAY"
As he passed from the brilliant sunlight enveloping this space centre, then moved over Africa and the Indian Ocean into the dark conical Australia, he said, "sure was a short day."

ONE ODDITY
His first trip around the earth and into today, Feb. 21, and back again at mid-Pacific to Feb. 20, required only 28 minutes and 29 seconds.
After making his first trip, he reported one oddity—still unexplained.
He said he noted thousands of luminous particles outside his cabin window, travelling at the same speed as his spacecraft. They glowed in the sun rising over the Pacific. One guess is that they were dust specks.

Glenn emerged from the capsule "hale and hearty" at 2:30 p.m.

Radiant Wife Relaxes

Betraying only traces of the pent-up emotion she must have felt at husband's pioneering orbital flight yesterday, Mrs. John Glenn, Jr., stands with astronaut's son David and chats by telephone with Mr. and Mrs. John Glenn, Sr., at their home in New Concord, Ohio.—(AP Photofax.)

Second Big Thrill

Special TV hook-up between Astronaut Glenn's hometown of Arlington, Va., and his parents' home in New Concord, Ohio, gave Mr. and Mrs. John Glenn, Sr., their second big thrill yesterday, a person-to-person talk with their grandchildren about Dad's daring space success.—(AP Photofax.)

Last Rites by Area Committee

Merger Issue Again Put to Sleep

Plastic Fairy Tale

New setting for old fairy tale is Garry oak at 1061 Foul Bay Road. Brenda Petterson, four-watches wide-eyed as Jack, with axe upraised prepares to fell the giant that lived at the top of the legendary beanstalk. Characters are fashioned of lightweight plastic and are part of the proposed "Wooded Wonderland" at Beaver Lake. (Colonist photo.)

By TED SHACKLEFORD
Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee yesterday quietly rebuffed the amalgamation issue.

Last rites were administered in the city hall committee room during a meeting of the committee.

REPORTS FILED

Reports from the four Greater Victoria municipal bodies on the subject—with only the city in favor of a government-ordered study—were received and filed on a motion by Coun. Allan Cox of Oak Bay seconded by Ald. Austin Curtis of Victoria.

The vote was unanimously in favor of the motion.

BLACK AND WHITE

Oak Bay and Esquimalt spokesmen had suggested that city council should set down its proposals on amalgamation study in black and white but Mayor R. B. Wilson rejected the suggestion.

"I think it should be set down and backed up by pretty strong argument," Reeve A. C. Wurtele told the meeting.

IN SIMPLE FORM

"If that is put down in simple form, our council are prepared to go to the people and ask, 'do you want a study?'"

REDUCE OVERHEAD

"We feel this matter can be discussed around this table and the discussion will provide us with information if amalgamation will reduce overhead and costs and taxation or whether it will increase costs."

SUPPORTS CALL

Coun. Cox supported Reeve Wurtele's call for the city to make out a "prima facie" case for an amalgamation study.

"This doesn't have to be an expensive deal, you know what you want. Let's sit down and put it on a piece of paper. Let's have some idea of what we are talking about."

FURTHER APART

But Mayor Wilson rejected the proposal. "The thing that worries me today is that if there is anybody here who does not know the advantages to be gained, then we are further apart than I thought," he said.

Reeve George Murdoch stressed that taxes are of primary importance to residents in a municipality.

"Is it going to be less costly as one unit or is it going to be more costly?"

That is exactly what we want to find out," an smiling Mayor Wilson commented.

Ald. Curtis said he would like to "leave the door open."

"I gather from this conversation that if we can put together more of what we have in mind, the municipalities would like to have that," he said.

Coun. Cox expressed surprise.

Both city and Saanich representatives ignored a suggestion by Reeve George Murdoch that two municipalities could amalgamate if they wished, without involving Oak Bay and Esquimalt councils.

'I'm All Right, Jack'

Epitaph for Amalgamation Bid

One of the major obstacles to amalgamation in Greater Victoria is the "I'm all right, to hell with you, Jack" attitude, Reeve Stanley Murphy said yesterday.

"This selfish position is defended in ringing terms—self-determination, etc.—and so the human animal pursues his self-interest in a day-to-day existence without regard to the future."

Reeve Murphy painted a dark picture of Greater Victoria's future without amalgamation:

Victoria—Commercial blight and costly renewal programs. No reason to rejoice.

Saanich—Tremendously high development costs at the sacrifice of amenities.

Oak Bay—Decline and exodus of the population.

Esquimalt—Accelerating blight as the navy becomes obsolete.

"I don't know why Ald. Curtis should just gather this," he said. "It was in our policy statement (jointly published some time ago by Oak Bay and Esquimalt councils)."

Both city and Saanich representatives ignored a suggestion by Reeve George Murdoch that two municipalities could amalgamate if they wished, without involving Oak Bay and Esquimalt councils.

Parents Complain

Filthy Books Returning On Stands

"Filth, slush and mire" have quietly returned to Victoria book and magazine racks, a Roman Catholic school parents' group claimed yesterday.

"We realize that, as well-intentioned as you are to see our children not vitiated by this filth, slush and mire, certain legal difficulties prevent themselves in your attempts to carry out your desires to stop the distribution of this material to the children," St. Ann's Parents' Association secretary, Mrs. W. W. Brown, wrote in a letter to city council.

pealing to the federal government to make it an offence under the criminal code to sell such trash to children.

OUT OF HAND

"You may, of course, have other ideas in mind to rectify this situation which is getting more and more out of hand as the months go by."

The letter will likely come before a meeting of city council tomorrow afternoon.

Similar letters to council some time ago were answered by city health and morals committee.

Writers were told the responsibility is on individual citizens to lay complaints against objectionable literature.

EVERY MEANS

"Nevertheless, we urge you to use every legal means at your disposal to stop these senseless and distasteful attempts to bring harm to our children by the indiscriminate distribution of these dirty, vile, smutty publications."

"May we suggest as one thought that you consider ap-

Mayor Spurns Edgelow Over Men's Home 'Vote'

City May Give $11,000 For Seattle Booth

An emergency meeting of city finance committee yesterday voted to donate almost $11,000 towards the cost of a publicity booth at the Seattle fair if other areas support the scheme.

The share asked of city council was $10,978. Total amount needed to rent and operate the booth is some $57,000.

For Coast Guard

Shipyard Will Build New Search Vessel

A new search and rescue vessel for the Canadian coast guard, 95 feet in length and costing $819,145, will be built this year by Yarrows Ltd. in Victoria. A. DeB. McPhillips, Victoria MP, said yesterday in Ottawa.

The twin-screw vessel, capable of a cruising range of 1,500 nautical miles at a normal operating speed of 14 knots, is capable of considerably greater speeds when necessary. The vessel will be driven by four marine diesel engines, developing a total of 2,800 horse power.

FOR BUGGED SEA

The vessel is designed for operation under rugged sea and weather conditions. It is designed to carry a crew of 16 officers and men and will be fully fitted for search and rescue patrol duty.

Latest type of navigation and communications equipment will be installed, including provision for communication with aircraft during search and rescue operations.

Grants Delay Home

Construction of a new juvenile detention home to serve Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt will be delayed for three months to allow the work to qualify for winter works program grants.

This was decided at a meeting of Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee yesterday when members were told plans and specifications for the building will be completed in time for a start on construction by August.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Clarke, 106 Regency Apartments, who were married in St. Edward's Church, Winnipeg, Feb. 19, 1912, marked their golden wedding anniversary on Monday. Among the callers during the day was Monsignor W. B. McKenzie, a native son of Mr. Clarke's home town in Prince Edward Island. The Clarks lived in Regina until coming here in 1958 when Mr. Clarke retired from the Calgary Brewing and Malting Company with whom he had been associated for 56 years. Mr. Clarke is a long standing member of the North West Commercial Travellers' Association, Knights of Columbus and United Commercial Travellers. Mrs. Clarke was the former Ellen Margaret McCabe of Toronto and was an active worker in the Red Cross, Girl Guides and was also Diocesan president of the Catholic Women's League in Regina. They have one son, Orwell, who lives in Winnipeg.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I did a terrible thing five weeks ago and can't get it off my mind. I've lost 17 pounds and I'm a nervous wreck.

I'm 38, happily married and the mother of three children. Money has always been scarce and I wanted desperately to have a new dress for a party. I couldn't afford anything in silk so I went to a department store to look at some inexpensive cottons. I tried on a cute one at $9.98 and it was a perfect fit. Unconsciously I put my coat on over the new dress and began to walk out. Suddenly I realized what I was doing. But it seemed too easy, so I kept walking, knowing my old dress was on the hanger.

A house detective stopped me just outside the door. All I could do was cry. Since I had never done anything like this before they let me go.

Now I'm so ashamed I can't sleep at night. My religion has always been important to me but now I avoid going to church because of the confession. How can I get this off my conscience?—PEGGY

Dear Peggy: Since confession is part of your religion, start there—and you'll feel better.

Nothing is so futile (and energy-consuming) as torturing yourself over what happened yesterday. Learn from your mistake and then put it out of your mind. The authorities were extremely generous and you have much to be grateful for.

Dear Ann Landers: Am I old-fashioned or just nuts? What has happened to those twin virtues "dependability" and "consideration?" Friends and business associates break dates at the last minute with the lamest excuses you ever heard. Often I've sat staring at my wrist watch (even shaking it occasionally) for 25 or 30 minutes. The offending party waltzes in unconcerned, without a word of apology.

People promise to phone and then they proceed to forget it. They offer to drop something in the mail and it never arrives. I know precious few individuals whose word means anything.

Is this part of our declining society—a symptom of the moral decay that philosophers are concerned about? Or did people behave this way 100 years ago?—JAUNDICED EYE

Dear Jaundiced: It was ever thus. The human animal has changed little since Abe Lincoln's time. The reason you didn't notice it 100 years ago is because you weren't around. Ironically, however, busy people are the most dependable. The goof-offs who do the least invariably keep the busy ones waiting.

Alexander-Hollings Vows In St. Mary's, Fulford

FULFORD — The beautifully decorated, historic St. Mary's Church in Fulford was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday, when Valerie Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Hollings of Fulford Harbour, and Roger Alexander, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Hughes of Fulford, were wed by Archdeacon G. H. Holmes.

The bride was lovely in a gown of white lace over satin, featuring a scalloped neckline, and lily-point sleeves. She wore a chapel veil held in place by a pearl tiara, and carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses. Miss Marilyn Watt was maid of honor, and she wore an emerald green gown. Bridesmaid, Miss Roberta Akerman, wore a gold gown. Both attendants carried bouquets of spring flowers and wore whimsy hats with short veils.

The brother of the groom, Mr. Charles Hughes of Vancouver, was best man. Ushers were Mr. David Plumbe and Mr. Glenn Tremayne, both of Vancouver.

The bride was given away by her father, Mr. F. Hollings. Wedding music was played by Miss Susan Fellows of Ganges. The reception was held at the Fulford Community Hall, where the decorations were of spring flowers. The bride and groom cut the lovely three-tiered wedding cake, which had been made by the bride and her sister Anne, and decorated by Mrs. Don Layard of Ganges. The toast to the bride was given by Mr. A. D. Dane.

They left for their honeymoon on Vancouver Island. Mrs. Hughes wore a pale blue wool suit and hat to match, black shoes and purse, for her going away outfit.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Hughes will make their home at Fulford Harbour.

Out of town guests were; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hughes, Vancouver, Mr. and Mrs. G. Tremayne, Vancouver, Miss Marilyn Watt, New Westminster, Mr. and Mrs. R. Douglas, Victoria, Mr. and Mrs. A. Plumbe and David Plumbe, Vancouver.

TV TALK

By JIM TAYLOR

The TV networks cry foul at the charge that television is aimed at the 10-year-old mind. If it isn't, why then do they insist on publicizing their shows with pap like the little gem that arrived today? "Brighter ambition of little Ronnie Dapo, nine-year-old star of 'Room For One More' is to play a cowboy role in which he can do a shoot-out scene with his idol among the big men of the oaters, 240-pound Clint Walker, who stands 6'4" feet tall in the saddle on the 'Cheyenne' show.

"Trying the idea for size during a visit to the Cheyenne set, Ronnie found himself caught short, but ingeniously evened things up by dragging in a three-foot ladder, and only the quick intervention of the prop man who took away his cap pistol prevented bloodshed."

Not meaning any disrespect to ingenious little Ronnie, but did he just happen to be carrying around a three-foot ladder in case he should run into old Clint Walker? More likely there was a Madison Avenue shark behind him totting a ladder and a cap pistol. "Look, Ronnie, sweetheart," he undoubtedly said, "Follow this one and see what it eats. You go up to this Walker, like you want to have a duel with him, see, but you're too short. So you grab this ladder..."

Father Knows Least

VANCOUVER (CP)—The demotion of fathers as ruler of the home is a major cause of juvenile delinquency, the only woman member of the National Parole Board said this week.

Mary Lynch said North America has adopted a matriarchal family structure. "Father has been demoted and degraded and too many homes are now run by mothers," said Miss Lynch, also a member of the federal committee studying juvenile delinquency.

"Father no longer has his children's respect and it is a terrible shame."

She said she does not advocate the return of the Victorian conception of the father as a kind of god, but urges a happy medium between that attitude and the present female domination in most homes. "Now it seems that when the mother doesn't run the home, the children do," she said. "Parents refuse to back up the necessary discipline of schools and police. They are over-protective in many cases."

"Three things are necessary for well adjusted children: discipline, affection and security. Discipline should be strict, as long as it is fair, and it will be accepted by the children as long as there is affection and security as well."

Other causes of delinquency listed by Miss Lynch are working mothers, who leave their children feeling unwanted and insecure, and homes broken by alcoholism, poverty or other reasons. She is touring Western Canada to acquaint herself with some of the prisons from which she and other parole board members receive parole applications.

One Prison for 'Sons' Says Parole Official

VANCOUVER (CP)—A member of the national parole board is opposed to proposals to disperse Sons of Freedom Doukhobors among federal prisons because Freedomsites would have bad effects on other prisoners.

Miss Mary Lynch, the only woman parole board member, said in an interview "We should keep these people in one institution . . . because of their weird habits such as disturbing and burning."

"They could have a very bad effect on prison discipline and the rehabilitation of other inmates."

City Pays Less Toward Costs Of Area Plans

The 1961 census and the 1962 assessment have given Victoria a slight advantage in sharing costs of intermunicipal projects.

Under a new cost-sharing formula adopted by Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee yesterday, the city's share has dropped to 43.53 per cent, from the 46.4 per cent paid last year.

Saanich will in future pay 34.97 per cent, compared with 32.3 per cent last year; Oak Bay will pay 14.06 per cent (12.5 per cent in 1961); Esquimalt will pay 7.43 per cent (down from 8.8 per cent).

The new formula is based on the total assessments in the four municipalities and partly on the populations of the municipalities.

Victoria's population — as shown by the 1961 census — is little more than it was in 1956.

Green Belt Urged

Establishment of a green belt of reserved land in Greater Victoria was proposed yesterday.

The suggestion came to a meeting of Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee from Oak Bay council.

The suggestion is that the committee, in co-operation with the Capital Improvement District Commission and the Capital Region Planning Board, investigate the feasibility of the scheme.

Legal agreements would be obtained with farmers and owners of other open land to keep the land unsubdivided.

"The CIDC already has this in hand in certain areas," Rennie George Murdoch of Oak Bay told the committee.

but the other municipalities all gained in population.

And Victoria's assessment dropped some $2,000,000 this year, compared with increases in Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt.

Join Human Race Or Die—Chisholm

Former World Health Organization director Dr. Brock Chisholm yesterday offered a bleak, simply-stated prescription for humanity's life—join the human race or die.

"Loyalty to any particular group," he told a meeting of the Canadian Club in the Empress Hotel, "just isn't good enough in these times. We will survive as partners in the human race, or we will not survive at all."

None Seriously

Baby, Four Others Hurt In Four Area Crashes

Five persons, including a 15-month-old baby, were hurt in four separate accidents in the area during the past 36 hours.

Two young men were hurt when their car was forced off the road near the top of Mt. Tolmie.

NOT SERIOUSLY

Treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital were the driver, William J. Hamilton, 1097 Campbell, and Donald Buckner, 1449 Elford. Neither was hurt seriously.

An oncoming car forced their vehicle into the rocks at the side of road and caused $500 damage.

A truck which reversed out-side her home at 3016 Jutland struck down and sent 15-month-old Debbie Kerr to hospital with slight abrasions.

Police said the driver was A. H. Fido, 2226 Mount Newton.

Pedestrian Marie Krubig, 1051 Princess, was involved in an accident with a car police said was driven by Joseph Zibbro, 1265 Bay, as she walked across Cook.

In St. Joseph's Hospital with multiple lacerations is Peter Dootson, 4218 Wilkinson Road. Injured when his car went out of control and left Tillicum Road.

Columbia Delay Hits Area

Delay in settling financing of the Columbia River hydro-electric power project is causing concern in the Kootenay area directly involved, Donald Brothers (SC-Rossland-Trill) told the legislature Tuesday.

Uncertainty over the start on the multi-million-dollar project was having bad effects on the district.

A development of this size would add greatly to the economy of the Kootenay region and could make it one of the most industrialized areas in Canada.

However, delaying in firm decision to proceed meant planning could not be undertaken. The delay was causing distress among residents whose property would be flooded by the dams planned in the project.

Skills Query

School Switch Hit

A woman member of the legislature expressed concern Tuesday with what she called inclination of the education department to begin cutting off academic education at Grade 7 and channel children into vocational training.

"I cannot understand the thinking that blandly assumes that because a child is not doing well in academic work he will automatically do well in practical work," Mrs. Camille Mather (NDP-OCF-Delta) said in the legislature.

"I maintain that the same mental skills that determine a good craftsman are also inherent in a good academic student and that a poor academic student will not necessarily make a good practical worker."

Speaking in the budget debate, she said working well with the hands is as dependent upon mental ability as writing a poem.

Buy Up Parkland Now Municipalities Urged

Recreation Minister Westwood yesterday urged lower mainland municipalities to get together to obtain lands for recreational use before it is too late.

Speaking in the budget debate in the legislature, Mr. Westwood said there is an immediate need for these municipalities to act to create an organization with power to finance and establish a policy of land purchase for recreational use.

"Land and water prices are rising almost daily and if action is not taken, it will soon be too late," he said.

Tourist Boom Ahead

Westwood Urges Greater Effort

British Columbia could have a guest list of 5,000,000 American and Canadian visitors by 1965 and a tourist revenue of $300,000,000, Recreation Minister Earle Westwood told the legislature yesterday.

This would compare with 2,400,000 visitors this year and a tourist revenue of $115,000,000.

But Mr. Westwood warned that greater effort must be put into the promotion of the tourist industry, not only by the government but by industry and every person in British Columbia.

He produced figures to show that while B.C.'s tourist industry jumped 15 per cent last year, parts of the United States were doing a greater proportionate tourist business. "There is a grave danger that small annual increases and an appearance of steady progress will turn into a state of lethargy fatal to the realization of our visitor industry's great potential," he warned.

"There is no doubt about the road ahead, as far as British Columbia's tourism is concerned—it is a road paved with golden opportunities—but we must not stand still or mark time. We must move energetically along that road toward the rich rewards that a lifetime, the Seattle World's Fair," he said.

School Board Briefs

De Cosmos, First City Mayor Won't Have Names on Schools

Greater Victoria school board has turned down a request from the Centennial Pioneer's Committee for renaming of local schools in honor of Amor de Cosmos, second premier of B.C. and former Colonist editor, and Victoria's first mayor, Thomas Harris.

James Nesbitt, chairman of the centennial subcommittee, suggested Central Junior High School be named "Thomas Harris Junior High School." He also said Burnside, Oaklands, South Park or North Ward should be named after de Cosmos.

Trustees turned down the request, stating it was board policy not to name schools after people, living or dead.

Trustees approved installation of floodlighting for Craigdarroch Castle provided the school board obtained a written undertaking it would not be responsible for the cost of maintenance and electricity.

In his report, which was read to the board, city electrician Kenneth Reid said amber-colored floodlights would be used for the tower and white floodlights for the roof. He said estimated cost of the operation, jointly planned by Victoria and Society for Preservation of Craigdarroch Castle, is just under $2,000.

The school board voted to inform the commissioner of municipal superannuation that it favors advancing of retirement for female employees to 60 with a maximum of 65. It is 55 60 at present.

Expropriation proceedings will be started immediately to acquire three pieces of property—two in the Ten Mile Point area and the other adjoining Oak Bay Junior High School—where no agreement can be reached with the owners.

MLA Asks For Briefs

William Sparrow (SC-Cariboo), chairman of the legislative special public account committee, yesterday invited interested associations and groups to submit briefs.

He said it is expected that closely associated organizations will make one coordinated presentation. Briefs must be written for reference in committee study and can be presented by mail, or be presented by a delegation meeting with committee members.

Arrangements for hearings may be made with the Account Committee Secretary, Legislative Buildings, Victoria.

holiday attractions," he said.

Mr. Westwood outlined his department's expanded tourist promotion program, especially aimed at the Seattle World Fair visitors.

ON THRESHOLD

"We stand on the threshold of the greatest opportunity this province has ever had to advance the promotion of its visitor industry. I refer to the simultaneous celebrations in 1962 of the Victoria Centennial, the Barkerville Centennial, the Kamloops 150th Anniversary, and, across the border in our neighboring state of Washington, the event of a lifetime, the Seattle World's Fair," he said.

A LONG TIME?

He said it may be a long time before there is such a concentration of holiday-minded travellers as close to the B.C. border, as the estimated 15,000,000 gate-attendance expected at Century 21.

"And don't think they aren't coming. Already, in the first six weeks of 1962, our bureau has received 8,500 queries, just double what they were in this period a year ago," he said.

U.S. Goal: Men, A-Arms in Space

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

John Glenn's successful triple orbit of the globe is likely to lead to a sharp intensification of the United States space effort.

American space men needed a victory to lift their spirits and they got it. But as rocket designer Werner von Braun commented: "This is just the beginning."

Russia still has the lead in rocket propulsion and accomplishment although the Glenn shot has narrowed the gap.

President Kennedy has lamented the Soviet lead but he is determined to close the gap not so much because of the Russian-American race for the moon as for the military potential space offers to the power that masters it first.

Top American military leaders have informed The Canadian Press that the ability to operate in space with men and nuclear weapons is a crucial top priority need. Every effort must be bent in that direction. But the U.S. military effort in space can only go as fast as its scientist can take it. The American military fear is that Russia may get there first and may use her domination of space to blackmail the west with a threat of nuclear extermination.

Now Glenn has demonstrated that the U.S. has gathered the technical ability and equipment to orbit the earth successfully. He also has demonstrated, in a small, preliminary way, that man can think, live and operate in space for short periods. Yet to be demonstrated—either by Russia or the U.S.—is whether man can operate in space for long periods, say, for weeks or months.

Russia successfully orbited the earth with the Gherman Titov shot of 17 revolutions last May. The U.S. likely will attempt a similar experiment later this year, perhaps within a few months.

After that, the two countries are likely to move in the same direction—the creation of larger two-man capsules to allow one man to sleep while the other works in round-the-clock space operations lasting a week or two.

American plans for such a capsule—known as Gemini—are already on the drafting boards and a Canadian engineer, Jina Chamberlin of Kamloops, B.C., and Toronto, has been placed in charge of the entire operation. Chamberlin has hopes of making his first launchings in 1964. But so enthused is the U.S. government with the Glenn shot that every effort will be made to push up launching dates for the entire program.

Jaunty Glenn Proves 'Life Begins at 40'

GRAND TURK, Bahamas (UPI)—Lt. Col. John Glenn stepped jauntily back on dry land last night after his three-orbit trip around the earth and said, "Boy, what an exciting day!"

"It was a long day—and a very interesting one, too," he added.

Carpenter was one of the first to grab Glenn as he stepped out of the plane. Back-up astronaut M. Scott "John" you did a real wonderful job," Carpenter said, slapping Glenn on the back.

"Thanks a lot," Glenn replied. "I couldn't feel better." Also on hand to greet him was fellow astronaut Donald (Deke) Slayton, who is scheduled to fly the next Mercury orbital mission, perhaps in two months. Rep. Victor Anfuso (D-N.Y.) also was here as a representative of the House space committee.

"Well done—you have proved that life begins at 40," quipped Anfuso.

WELCOME SIGN
At the small home hospital Glenn was welcomed by another small group of tracking station workers. They had hoisted a "Welcome Col. John Glenn" sign on the outside of the hospital.

EXCITING DAY
"Howdy," Glenn waved to the group at the hospital before he went in.

Col. John (Shorty) Powers, astronaut spokesman, described Glenn after a brief visit with him in the hospital as " hale, healthy, hearty and happy."

FLIGHT REVIEWED
Glenn began reviewing his flight with his fellow astronauts, telling them about his experience in re-entering the atmosphere at the end of the three-orbit ride.

He told of seeing flaming pieces of the space capsule's retro-rockets package flying past the window of his capsule.

'I Couldn't Feel Better'

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Astronaut John Glenn whirled three times around the earth yesterday in his tiny Mercury capsule, landed smack in an Atlantic Ocean bullseye, and reported to a joyous nation that "I couldn't feel better."

After spending four hours and 56 minutes whirling above oceans and continents, he came down in the prime recovery zone 800 miles southeast of here and was picked up with an old-fashioned block and tackle by the delighted crew of the navy destroyer No. 1.

Within three hours he was on board the big carrier Randolph, eating a dinner of filet mignon, and then was flown back to land at Grand Turk Island in the Bahamas.

The U.S. nation, from President Kennedy to the people in New York who showered their streets with ticker tape, shared in the delight of Glenn's success after so many frustrating postponements.

In addition it was a singular triumph for the Project Mercury team of scientists, engineers and astronauts, who started from scratch only three years ago and wound up with a near-perfect achievement.

'Just Wonderful'

"I feel fine. I feel just wonderful. I couldn't feel better," Glenn said last night. He will spend the next two days being "debriefed," describing his experiences of spending nearly five weightless hours in the capsule, of the searing return to the earth's atmosphere, and of the sights he saw on his voyage.

Even as he began to relax after the trip, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration was getting ready for more orbital flights in the near future. Next on the list is air force Major Donald K. Slayton, who may go into orbit within the next two months, and who flew to Grand Turk to hear first hand from Glenn what to expect.

No Trace Of Stress

Sending John Glenn shows no sign of emotional and physical stress endured during 300 minutes of his historic space flight as he records his reactions into microphone during debriefing and physical examination aboard pick-up destroyer USS Nautilus after he and capsule were plucked from Atlantic "ball park."—(AP Photofax)

City Girl Flees From Molester

By ERITH SMITH

A 12-year-old Victoria girl last night escaped unharmed but badly frightened from a man who lured her to a remote spot and threatened to stab her if she cried out.

City police were combing the area during the night for a man answering the hysterical girl's description. It tallied in large measure with that given by another 12-year-old girl who less than an hour earlier in another sector of the city refused similar blandishments to enter a stranger's car.

STOPPED BY FIELD
When the car stopped they were by a field of rocks. He took her from the car, walked her a short distance, took away her glasses, made her get down on the ground and threatened her verbally with a knife.

He unbuttoned her coat and dress, then returned to his car.

WENT TO HOUSE
As soon as he left, the girl got up and ran, going to the first house she came to and mobbing out her story. Police were called and their investigation turned up 35 cents in coins at the spot where the attack occurred.

GIRL REFUSED
The girl approached earlier was also offered 50 cents if she'd show the driver the way to a drug store. When she refused, he raised the offer to 75 cents and said his grandmother was very sick, that he was from Vancouver and didn't know his way around. She still refused, and went home.

Court-Martial Monday In U.S. Shelling Incident

Court-martial of Cmdr. Richard Leir on charges arising out of the Callam Bay, Wash., shelling incident last month is scheduled to open at HMCS Naden Monday.

The announcement by Rear-Admiral E. W. Finch-Noyes yesterday did not detail the charge or charges to be faced by the 40-year-old skipper of the destroyer-escort HMCS Skeena.

Under the normal procedure followed at courts-martial, newsmen covering the trial will be handed copies of the charge when proceedings open on the first day.

Skeena was one of four Esquimaux-based warships carrying out gunnery exercises in Juan de Fuca Strait Jan. 29 when several anti-aircraft shell fragments rained down on the Olympic peninsula resort and logging community.

Skeena Seeking Sub?

The RCN Pacific Command destroyer-escort Skeena sailed from Esquimaux shortly after 4 p.m. yesterday for an undisclosed destination on what the navy termed "an operational mission." ## Pay-to-Camp Fees Spread in B.C.

By ALEC MERRIMAN

A pay-to-camp fee will be charged in all major B.C. provincial parks this summer. Recreation Minister Earle Westwood told the legislature yesterday.

He indicated the fee will be reduced from the $2-a-day charge made at four pilot parks last summer, and that the length of free stay will be increased beyond the two free days of last year.

He said charges will be made at all provincial parks which have an attendant, and on Vancouver Island this will mean that campers will have to pay at McDonald Park at Sidney, at Goldstream Park, Bamberston Park, Ivy Green Park at Ladysmith, Englishman River Falls Park, Little Qualicum Falls Park, Long Beach and Miraculous Beach Park. "We are not interested in the money. What we want to do is to provide the encouragement and incentive for campers to move around and see all of British Columbia. "We don't want them to settle down in one camp. If they want to move around they will be able to spend their entire holidays without paying anything," he said.

He said the move is being taken to prevent "camp hogs" who stake out a claim on one camping spot. He said that a pilot scheme at four major parks—Miracle Beach, Cultus Lake, Okanagan and Shuswap—last summer had accomplished the aim of clearing out these camp hogs.

Indian Land Sought For Duncan Future

Gaglardi Is Fun If Sitting

DUNCAN—Go to the B.C. government if you want better maintenance of roads in the reserve, city engineer R. E. Potter told Cowichan Indian leaders at the annual meeting of the city and Indian council Monday.

"Mr. Gaglardi is lots of fun and will be delighted to see you," said Mr. Potter.

"Yes," said Chief Louise Underwood, "if he sits down long enough to listen."

Cowichan Chief:

Indians Trying Hard To Better Themselves

DUNCAN—Cowichan Indians are trying hard to improve themselves. Chief Louise Underwood told the joint meeting of the Indian and city councils.

She said upholding tradition is not a problem since her people are very keen on it. Young Indians, especially teenagers, are fond of the ceremonial dancing.

The chief pointed out her council has been successful in arousing the Indians' interest in youth groups, sport activities and civic affairs.

"They don't bother to go to

DUNCAN—City council has asked Cowichan Indians for permission to lease more land from band members so Duncan can expand.

Request was made Monday night at the annual meeting of civic officials and the Cowichan Indian band council. Also discussed were:

● Indians' progress and road maintenance (see adjoining stories).

● A raft of other problems ranging from dances for tourists to water rates.

City engineer R. E. Potter told Chief Louise Underwood and councillors that Duncan can only expand to the south on Trunk Road.

MORE AREAS NEEDED

More residential, commercial and light industry areas are needed, he said, but the city only wants to lease since the Indians "should keep your valuable land."

The chief, who said her new planning committee will take a "good look" at the proposal, pointed out most reserve land is owned by individuals who want to keep it for their children.

35 ACRES LEASED

Duncan now leases 35 acres of Indian land, including the large parking lot near city centre and the area of the sewage lagoon.

The councillors said Cowichan Indians have not yet planned any festive activity for Duncan's 50th birthday this year but may consider putting on some dances as a special tourist attraction.

TRADITIONAL RITES

These dances can only be performed by "non-dancers" since the official dancers perform only in traditional rites from Christmas to Easter.

The civic officials said some of the Indians don't realize they have to pay the same water rates as other Duncan residents.

WATER AGREEMENT

A water agreement of 1925 said Indians did not have to pay because standpipes are used. But several have made house connections and are committed to pay.

Councillors with the chief were Norman Joe, Dennis Alphonse, Leonard Peters and Alfonso Billy.

Caught in the Act

CAMPBELL RIVER—A Willow Point resident caught in the act of an attempted theft will serve a total of three months for the attempt and for an actual theft.

Magistrate P. E. Lewis yesterday sentenced V. Richard Chaplin for theft of an aluminum truck canopy and for attempted theft of a pilderiver motor. The latter belonged to Harry Gagne of Campbell River. Chaplin was surprised in the act by Mrs. Gagne.

Mercy Trip Fails

CAMPBELL RIVER—Mercy mission failed yesterday when Island Airline pilot Robert Savage arrived too late to have a longer apparently stricken by a heart attack.

Dennis Smith, aged about 35, of Parkin Logging Co. camp, died before the pilot arrived at Gifford Island near Minto Island north-east of Kelsey Bay.

ALBERNI—For the third time, Alberni ratepayers will be asked to vote on a sewer system installation bylaw.

Council Monday night authorized an application to the

Booth Bill Rejected By Alberni

ALBERNI—Alberni will not contribute toward the cost of a Vancouver Island booth at the Seattle world fair.

With only $1,000 in the budget for tourist promotion, council decided Monday $771 in one lump sum was too much. However, consideration will be given to a request from Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau for $350 for magazine, newspaper and radio campaigns.

Ald. George Dunbar pointed out there will be a B.C. booth and, "after all Vancouver Island is still a part of B.C. and we hope it will be given a fair amount of publicity."

Newcastle Island

Tourist Park Hopes Rise

Recreation Minister Westwood, Social Credit MLA for Nanaimo and the Islands, said Tuesday he hopes the government soon will be able to develop Newcastle Island as a provincial park.

He said the island, off Nanaimo, has tremendous possibilities as a tourist attraction with a small lake in the centre of its 700 acres.

On Monday, Mayor Pete Maffee was delegated by Nanaimo council to seek a meeting with Mr. Westwood about Newcastle Island.

Council indicated it is far from satisfied with progress made in development of the island which the city bought from the CPR in 1953 for $150,000. It was turned over to the government last year on condition it be developed as a park.

Ald. Bus MacDonald said Nanaimo has a $150,000 investment in the island, and action should be made, perhaps by ferry until a bridge is built across the harbor.

Mr. Westwood spoke in the legislature, where he also said the Nanaimo area "is going to grow tremendously" in the next few years.

He referred to the $40,000,000 expansion at Harmac pulp mill, opening next November of a new hospital, a possible $25,000,000 expansion of a pulp mill at Crofton and tests in April for a pipeline to carry natural gas from the mainland.

Health Centre Bids Too High

CAMPBELL RIVER—District hospital board officials are negotiating with a Courtenay construction company after opening of tenders yesterday for the new district public health centre showed all tenders too high.

Low bidder was Harrison and Longland of Courtenay at $71,830, believed to be about $10,000 over the estimate of the board and district medical health officer Dr. G. Gibson.

Other bids were Millhouse, North Vancouver, $74,829; Cloverdale, New Westminster, $74,950; Bjornson, New Westminster, $75,000; Knutson, Vancouver, $75,914; E. Polglase, Campbell River, $78,964; Turner Construction Port Alberni, $78,370; Heath, Victoria, $78,444; Lickley, Johnson and Palmer, Vancouver, $78,619; and D. Robertson Construction, Nanaimo, $81,578.

Health centre now is the upper floor of the Atwater Building.

New centre, to be built adjacent to the Campbell River hospital on hospital-owned land, will include a room for the Red Cross. The latter and the local cancer unit will each contribute seven per cent of the cost and there will be a provincial grant.

U.S. Goal: Men, A-Arms in Space

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

John Glenn's successful triple orbit of the globe is likely to lead to a sharp intensification of the United States space effort.

American space men needed a victory to lift their spirits and they got it. But as rocket designer Werner von Braun commented: "This is just the beginning."

Russia still has the lead in rocket propulsion and accomplishment although the Glenn shot has narrowed the gap.

President Kennedy has lamented the Soviet lead but he is determined to close the gap not so much because of the Russian-American race for the moon as for the military potential space offers to the power that masters it first.

Top American military leaders have informed The Canadian Press that the ability to operate in space with men and nuclear weapons is a crucial top-priority need. Every effort must be bent in that direction. But the U.S. military effort in space can only go as fast as its science can take it. The American military fear is that Russia may get there first and use her domination of space to blackmail the West with a threat of nuclear extermination.

Now Glenn has demonstrated that the U.S. has gathered the technical ability and equipment to orbit the earth successfully. He also has demonstrated, in a small, preliminary way, that man can think, live and operate in space for short periods. Yet to be demonstrated—either by Russia or the U.S.—is whether man can operate in space for long periods, say, for weeks or months.

Russia successfully orbited the earth with the Gherman Titov shot of 17 revolutions last May. The U.S. likely will attempt a similar experiment later this year, perhaps within a few months.

After that, the two countries are likely to move in the same direction—the creation of larger two-man capsules to allow one man to sleep while the other works in round-the-clock space operations lasting a week or two.

American plans for such a capsule—known as Gemini—are already on the drafting boards and a Canadian engineer, Jim Chamberlain of Kitchissippi, B.C., and Toronto, has been placed in charge of the entire operation. Chamberlain has hopes of making his first launchings in 1964. But so enthused is the U.S. government with the Glenn shot that every effort will be made to push up launching dates for the entire program.

SPACEMAN PROVES LIFE BEGINS AT 40

GRAND TURK, Bahamas (UPI)—Lt. Col. John Glenn stepped jauntily back on dry land last night after his three-orbit trip around the earth and said, "Boy, what an exciting day!"

"It was a long day—and a very interesting one, too," he added.

The 40-year-old astronaut landed on this tiny British island where an air force tracking station is located.

Glenn, dressed in blue coveralls and wearing sneakers, was in the co-pilot's seat of a twin-engine navy patrol plane which brought him here from the carrier Randolph where he had been taken after being picked up at sea by a destroyer.

APPLAUDED

A crowd of about 100 greeted Glenn at the landing strip and applauded him as he stepped into a waiting truck and rode off to a hospital built especially for "de-briefing" of Project Mercury astronauts.

Back-up astronaut M. Scott Carpenter was one of the first to grab Glenn as he stepped out of the plane.

"John, you did a real wonderful job," Carpenter said, slapping Glenn on the back.

"Thanks a lot," Glenn replied. "I couldn't feel better."

Also on hand to greet him was fellow astronaut Donald (Dick) Slayton, who is scheduled to fly the next Mercury orbital mission, perhaps in two months. Rep. Victor Roush (D-N.Y.) also was here as a representative of the House space committee.

"Well done—you have proved that life begins at 40," quipped Roush.

WELCOME SIGN

At the small base hospital Glenn was welcomed by another small group of tracking station workers. They had hoisted a "Welcome Col. John Glenn" sign on the outside of the hospital.

"Howdy," Glenn waved to the group at the hospital before he went in.

Col. John (Shorty) Powers, astronaut spokesman, described Glenn after a brief visit with him in the hospital as " hale, healthy, hearty and happy."

FLIGHT REVIEWED

Glenn began reviewing his flight with his fellow astronauts, telling them about his experience in re-entering the atmosphere at the end of the three-orbit ride.

He told of seeing flaming pieces of the space capsule's retro-rockets package flying past the window of his capsule.

'I Couldn't Feel Better'

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Astronaut John Glenn whirled three times around the earth yesterday in his tiny Mercury capsule, landed smack in an Atlantic Ocean bulge, and reported to a joyous nation "I couldn't feel better."

After spending four hours and 55 minutes whizzing above oceans and continents, he came down in the prime recovery zone 800 miles southeast of here and was picked up with an old-fashioned block and tackle by the delighted crew of the navy destroyer Nea.

Within three hours he was on board the big carrier Randolph, eating a dinner of filet mignon, and then was flown back to land at Grand Turk Island in the Bahamas.

The U.S. nation, from President Kennedy to the people in New York who showered their streets with ticker tape, shared in the delight of Glenn's success after so many frustrating postponements.

In addition it was a singular triumph for the Project Mercury team of scientists, engineers and astronauts, who started from scratch only three years ago and wound up with a near-perfect achievement.

'Just Wonderful'

"I feel fine. I feel just wonderful. I couldn't feel better," Glenn said last night.

He will spend the next two days being "de-briefed," describing his experiences of spending nearly five weightless hours in the capsule, of the bearing return to the earth's atmosphere, and of the sights he saw on his voyage.

Even as he began to relax after the trip, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration was getting ready for more orbital flights in the near future. Next on the list is air force Major Donald K. Slayton, who may go into the orbit within the next two months, and who flew to Grand Turk to hear first hand from Glenn what to expect.

No Trace Of Stress

City Girl Flees From Molester

By ERITH SMITH

A 12-year-old Victoria girl last night escaped unharmful but badly frightened from a man who lured her to a remote spot and threatened to stab her if she cried out.

City police were combing the area during the night for a man answering the near-hysterical girl's description.

It tallied in large measure with that given by another 12-year-old girl who less than an hour earlier in another sector of the city refused similar blandishments to enter a stranger's car.

STOPPED HERE

The attack victim was on her way home at about 8.30 p.m. from a meeting of a girls' organization when a car stopped her and the driver offered her 50 cents if she'd show him where a drug store was open.

Thinking she "should help," she got into the car and directed him to a store about six blocks away. There he gave her the money, went into the store, then came out and told her to get down on the car floor and he'd drive her home.

STOPPED BY FIELD

When the car stopped they were by a field of rocks. He took her from the car, walked her a short distance, took away her glasses, made her get down on the ground and threatened her verbally with a knife.

He unbuttoned her coat and dress, then returned to his car.

WENT TO HOUSE

As soon as he left, the girl got up and ran, going to the first house she came to and sobbing out her story. Police were called and their investigation turned up 55 cents in coins at the spot where the attack occurred.

GIRL REFUSED

The girl approached earlier was also offered 50 cents if she'd show the driver the way to a drug store. When she refused, he raised the offer to 75 cents and said his grandmother was very sick, that he was from Vancouver and didn't know his way around. She still refused, and went home.

Court-Martial Monday In U.S. Shelling Incident

Court-martial of Cmdr. Richard Leir on charges arising out of the Clallam Bay, Wash., shelling incident last month is scheduled to open at HMCS Naden Monday.

The announcement by Rear Admiral E. W. Finch-Noyes yesterday did not detail the charge or charges to be faced by the 40-year-old skipper of the destroyer-escort HMCS Skeena.

Under the normal procedure followed at court-martial, newsmen covering the trial will be handed copies of the charge when proceedings open on the first day.

Skeena was one of four Esquimalt-based warships carrying out gunnery exercises in Juan de Fuca Strait Jan. 29 when several anti-aircraft shell fragments rained down on the Olympic peninsula resort and logging community.

G. E. Mortenson's series on medical care, "Twentieth Century Challenge," appears today on Page 2, along with stories of royal commission on health services hearings in Vancouver.

Skeena Seeking Sub?

The RCN Pacific Command destroyer-escort Skeena sailed from Esquimalt shortly after 4 p.m. yesterday for an undisclosed destination on what the navy termed "an operational mission."

Unofficial reports said the ship commanded by Cmdr. R. H. Leir was dispatched to check reports of a submarine sighted off the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Pay-to-Camp Fees Spread in B.C.

By ALEC MERRIMAN

A pay-to-camp fee will be charged in all major B.C. provincial parks this summer. Recreation Minister Earl Westwood told the legislature yesterday.

He indicated the fee will be reduced from the $2-a-day charge made at four pilot parks last summer, and that the length of free stay will be increased beyond the two free days of last year.

He said charges will be made at all provincial parks which have an attendant, and on Vancouver Island this will mean that campers will have to pay at McDonald Park at Sidney, at Goldstream Park, at Barkham Park, at Greenman River Falls Park, at Little Qualicum Falls Park, at Long Beach and at Miracle Beach Park.

"We are not interested in the money. What we want to do is to provide the encouragement and incentive for campers to move around and see all of British Columbia.

"We don't want them to settle down in one camp. If they want to move around they will be able to spend their entire holidays without paying anything," he said.
